SENATORS PUT BAKER THROUGH HOT CROSS-FIRE

Secretary's Declaration That War Supplies Are Adequate, They Contend, Is Such as to Misdemean Country as to the Real Condition.

"SHOULD NOT BE LULLED TO SLEEP"

Baker Explains He Meant That Men Ready for Fighting Line Are Adequately Equipped; Camp Shortages.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Secretary Baker's examination today before the Senate Military Committee was warmed up by a rapid cross-fire of questions by Senators of both parties who did not agree with the generally favorable view of war preparations depicted by Baker's statement of yesterday.

The Senators declared his declaration that war supplies were adequate would mislead the country. Senator Weeks declared the country "should not be lulled to sleep by a general statement of facts that don't exist."

Baker explained that he meant to convey only the impression that all the men ready for the fighting line were adequately equipped.

Sensors Wadsworth and Weeks (Rep.) and Senators Chamberlain and Hichcock (Dem.), took the lead in cross-examining the Secretary and at times handled him without gloves.

Chairman Chamberlain at the outset said there were fears for powder production.

"The situation is satisfactory, and I think supplies are and will continue adequate," replied Secretary Baker.

Senator Wadsworth asked about the Board of Labor standards, which, testimony has said, has pacifists and Socialists among its members and is requiring new specifications in army equipment contracts which will reduce production.

"I know their character and expect qualifications well," said Secretary Baker in defense of the board.

Calls Delay Slight. Senator Wadsworth said the board's requirements were so rigid that production of army garments is being delayed.

Any delay is slight, Secretary Baker said, and health of factory workers is an important consideration.

"I must disagree with you that the delay is slight," said Senator Wadsworth.

Sensor Wadsworth said a witness had testified the board's contract standards threaten to cause strikes and require employers to receive labor leaders. He thought labor agitators would stir up trouble.

Baker denied knowledge that any considerable number of contractors were refusing to execute contracts because of the new labor standards.

Churchill Appeals for More American Troops

British Minister of Munitions Urges Sending of Men as Quickly and in as Great Numbers as Is Possible.

LONDON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Winston Spencer Churchill, British Minister of Munitions, addressing the American Luncheon Club today, made a powerful appeal for the sending of American soldiers to Europe quickly and in as large numbers as possible.

The reception of the war aims of Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson by the Central Powers, the Minister declared, showed a gulf that no bridge could span.

He added that the American naval forces in European waters; Robert Skinner, American Consul-General in London; Gen. Bridges of the British general staff; Col. E. D. Swinton, one of the inventors of the British tank; Sir Thomas Lipton and Sir Gilbert Parker, the novelist.

Churchill said England had sufficient reserve material to fully equip the several hundred thousand Americans when they landed in Europe. He advocated that shipping should be devoted to bringing men and finished or half-finished products rather than bulky raw materials.

Mr. Churchill said England had guns, men and fuses waiting for shells. Preparations were under way, he added, to meet the German hordes coming from the east.

Although he had no doubt of victory, Mr. Churchill declared the coming year would be the hardest of the great nation undertaken so great a task.

Your aid is vitally needed in this great struggle and needed soon. Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, presided at the luncheon which was attended by 200 persons.

Those at the luncheon included Lord Northcliffe, Baron Rhonda, food controller; Sir Albert Stanley, president of the British Board of Trade; Vice Admiral Sims, commander of the American naval forces in European waters; Robert Skinner, American Consul-General in London; Gen. Bridges of the British general staff; Col. E. D. Swinton, one of the inventors of the British tank; Sir Thomas Lipton and Sir Gilbert Parker, the novelist.

SUDDEN HASTE SHOWN TO PASS U. R. MEASURE

Aldermanic Committee Decides to Adopt Amendments Monday and Report It Friday.

GIVES LONG FRANCHISE Essentially Same Proposition Which Experts, After Analysis, Have Denounced.

In sudden haste to pass the bill granting the United Railways a franchise for 31 years, recognizing a capitalization of $60,000,000 and exempting the company from the mill tax and all occupation taxes, the Aldermanic Public Utilities Committee has decided to adopt amendments to the pending measure, Monday night, and report it to the Board of Aldermen next Friday.

P. J. Grimes, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, at a mass meeting Thanksgiving eve in protest against the measure, said that the referendum would be put through. Other protesters have made similar statements at public hearings.

As it stands, with amendments made or pledged by the committee, the bill is essentially the proposition which has been opposed by experts and franchise authorities who have analyzed its provisions in articles recently published from time to time in the Post-Dispatch.

Receivership Suit Pending. Evidence of anxiety to rush the pending United Railways bill to passage was manifest among the members of the Public Utilities Committee at its meeting last night.

Chairman Williams suggested that the proposed amendments contemplating the furnishing of a "minimum service" and that the payment of the mill tax should be enacted within a year after the franchise was accepted by the company, was rejected by his associates.

At one stage of the meeting Alderman Hampe, brother-in-law of John Schmoll, Director of Public Welfare and Chairman of the Republican City Committee, declared that if Chairman Schwartz did not put a motion to vote on the adoption of the amendment giving the company five years in which to pay the mill tax, "the vice chairman would put it."

Alderman Schrantz of the Twenty-seventh Ward declared that if the amendments were not promptly adopted he would attend no further meetings of the committee. Alderman Baur said the committee should "quit kidding and pass the bill."

Urged to Report Bill. Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein, Republican Committeeman from the Nineteenth Ward, has been urging members of the Public Utilities Committee to report the bill.

Class 1 to Be Fighting Men. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Drafted men placed in class 1 of the selective service will not be given commissions in the noncombatant arm of the service, under a resolution adopted by the War Council and approved by Secretary Baker.

It is the announced purpose of the War Department to draw fighting men from this class of registrants.

WILSON'S TERMS ARE REJECTED BY GERMAN PAPERS

Proposition Utterly Unacceptable and Discussion Is Useless, One Writer Declares.

PRESIDENT ATTACKED Executive "Has Erected a Brutal Military Dictatorship," Says Allgemeine Zeitung.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—The Nachrichten of Dusseldorf rejects President Wilson's proposition as utterly unacceptable and says that discussion is useless.

"It may be hard," it says, "after three years of war, but a decision must be sought on the battlefield. It is not our wish, but we shall not leave the field except with honor."

The Allgemeine Zeitung of Essen says: "President Wilson seems not to know that the smallest appropriation for the army requires the sanction of the Reichstag, the most democratic Parliament in the world. Yet he, who unheeding the spirit of the American Constitution, has erected a brutal military dictatorship in his own country, now presumes to talk about autocracy in free Germany."

"Not a Peace Program." The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, the semi-official German organ, published at Berlin, says:

"The 14 points do not form a program for world peace, but a real symphony of will to no peace. Beginning with his joyful fanfare of freedom, the sea and other things, on which the whole world is agreed, even if diversity of opinion exists regarding the method of realization, Mr. Wilson's intervention is not wanted. Having the opportunity of serving peace, he has only failed, but has clearly expressed a contrary intention."

"Appealing to the self-determination of nations, he presumes to interfere in the affairs of Austria-Hungary and proclaims the policy of doing violence to nations with disregard for all historical and racial facts."

With equal nonchalance he finds reason for the rejection of Turkey, says as could only be voiced by a man whose policy aims at playing off, one against another, of peoples and parts of people who belong together and are conscious of their homogeneity."

"Unacceptable and Brutal." The Koelnische Volkszeitung says: "President Wilson's program substantially repeats the program of the Entente. It is unacceptable for us as the British and is more brutal still than that of Lloyd George. He demands the severance from the German Empire of Alsace-Lorraine, which is nine-tenths inhabited by Germans, and he undisguisedly demands the severance from the empire of parts of Prussia inhabited by the Poles."

The Berliner Lokal Anzeiger in an article under the heading: "Entente's Wire Puller," speaks of the "unbranded impudence with which the leading statesmen of the multiple alliance deceive the whole world."

Vienna Press Comment. The Vienna newspapers, according to dispatches from Vienna, consider President Wilson's proposed peace conditions such as could only be imposed if the quadruple alliance were completely defeated.

The Fremdenblatt, in declaring the Wilsonian message reveals clearer than Lloyd George's speech the intentions of our enemies to let Russia continue to bleed for the selfish aims of the Entente.

The Neue Freie Presse says: "President Wilson is superior even to Lloyd George in his capacity for deceiving the nation. President Wilson interposes his 14 points with popular principles in order to deceive the masses who do not know our conditions. The message also, of course, aims at breaking up the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk."

"President Wilson says that the time for conquest and aggrandizement has gone by—of course, for the Central Powers, not for the Entente. He admits that Russia is impotent and helpless. He cannot deny that the present Russian Government is capable of a liberal interpretation; yet he continues slandering and war baiting."

New Barrier Erected. The Neues Wiener Tagblatt says: "President Wilson must be made clearly to understand that it is useless to try to win over the Central Powers for the Entente's plan of disruption and disintegration. Austria-Hungary will be the master of its own house. Our peoples do not need Mr. Wilson's protectorship. If President Wilson is unable to appreciate the justice of the Central Powers' standpoint we can but patiently wait for it will not be much longer before our enemies learn to sift the impossible from the possible."

The Neues Wiener Journal argues that President Wilson's demand for the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine erects a new barrier.

Die Zeit also declares that this demand cannot be discussed and that interference with the monarchy's affairs is inadmissible, but notes with placid and yokes.

12 Below Zero to Follow Blizzard Tonight; Heavy Snowfall Delays Traffic

Coldest Weather of the Winter and Lowest Temperature Here in Several Years Predicted—29-Mile Gale Carrying Snow.

Forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Clearing and colder tonight, with temperature about 12 degrees below zero. Tomorrow fair and continued cold.

An increasingly heavy snowfall, and cold which grew more intense as the day advanced, interfered with traffic this morning. Greater interference is expected tonight, when the coldest weather of the winter thus far and the lowest temperature in several years, is officially predicted.

Below-zero weather began at noon, when the official reading was 1 below. At 1 o'clock it was 2 below. The prediction for tonight is 12 below. Last winter's lowest record was 10 below on Feb. 10 last. Jan. 7, 1912, the reading was 14 below, and Feb. 13, 1905, it was 18 below. The record low temperature here is 23 below on Jan. 29, 1872.

Origin of Cold Wave. The cold wave, according to dispatches from Weather Bureau headquarters in Washington, came from North Saskatchewan, where the temperature is 42 below zero, and extended over the plains states and into the Missouri and lower Arkansas valleys, the west Gulf states and the extreme southwestern part of the country. It is expected to sweep from the Ohio Valley southward, tonight and tomorrow. There was an eight-inch snowfall in Little Rock, Ark., and heavy snows in Kansas and Oklahoma, with the promise of benefit to the Kansas winter wheat crop.

Last night's snowfall was comparatively light, the measurement from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. being 2.2 inches. There was some snow on the ground, which fell a few days before. After daylight the snowfall became heavier, and at 11 a. m. a 29-mile wind from the North was carrying a volume of snow which threatened a general tie-up of traffic.

Every effort was made to keep street car service and train movements from being blocked, and snowplows and sweepers were used in the streets and on rights of way.

Coal conditions are reported to be fairly good, and it was said there would be no lack of fuel for residence and business uses, even if the intense cold and storm conditions should last for several days.

Reports received by the St. Louis Fuel Committee showed that local dealers had about 30,000 tons of coal in their yards, that an equal amount was on the way from Illinois mines, and that coal shipments would have priority on the railroads. The municipal coal yards, selling at 16 cents a bushel, will be able to meet the expected large demand on them. It is estimated that the average home has a week's supply of coal on hand at present, and that larger users are fairly well supplied.

East Side electric lines kept their tracks to Alton, Edwardsville and Belleville open, although some early cars were delayed. Regular service was established on most of the lines by 9 o'clock.

Street Cars Delayed. Frequent delays occurred in street car service this morning and cross-town cars and those of some of the North St. Louis lines appeared at intervals and in bunches.

The Bellefontaine line in North St. Louis was tied up for a time by obstructions at the north end of the line, near Calvary Cemetery. The Cass line was operated under difficulties, and passengers of the Belt Line, in many cases, walked to other lines because of the delay of the Belt Line cars. Trips downtown from North St. Louis points, usually made in 25 minutes, took an hour or more.

The Hiram and Leander lines were operated as near the normal schedule as any.

Some Olive cars were an hour in.

NEGRO BURGLAR POSES AS A CLOTHING STORE DUMMY. Clothing store dummies were unsuccessfully used as camouflage by a negro burglar in the Edward Markman Loan Co. store at 181 Market street at 1 a. m. today.

An automatic alarm called policemen to the store but they found no trace of the burglar until they reached the second floor where a number of the dummies were stored. The negro standing rigid among them was the only one that jumped when rapped on the shin with a nightstick.

The negro gave his name as Tom Adams and said he recently came from Tennessee. Revolvers, watches and jewelry taken from the store were found in his pockets.

No Feels on Men's Clothes. NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Men's clothing will be shorn of many of their frills this year owing to the war needs for wool. It has been decided by the National Association of Clothing Designers at its sixteenth semi-annual convention in this city. The designers voted to eliminate "patch pockets," belts, plaids and yokes.

GERMANS WITHDRAW PEACE TERMS

German Foreign Secretary Announces Document Presented Dec. 25 Has Become Void Because of Nonacceptance.

Czernin Declares Failure of Allies to Participate Makes Separate Peace With Russia Alternative.

Dr. Von Kuehlmann, Refusing to Move the Conference, Says an Agreement Should Be Possible.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—The Central Powers have withdrawn their peace terms made public at the Brest-Litovsk conference on Dec. 25, it was announced by Dr. von Kuehlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, in his speech at the Brest-Litovsk conference with the Russians yesterday.

Owing to the non-acceptance by all the enemy Powers of those terms, Dr. von Kuehlmann stated, that document had "become null and void."

"Doubt as to Russian Intention." Dr. von Kuehlmann said the first task of the conference was to resume negotiations at the point where they were broken off at the time of the Christmas adjournment. Referring to the fixed determination of the Central Powers not to accede to the Russian suggestion of transference of the negotiations to neutral territory, he said Germany and her allies were not in a position to conduct elsewhere the discussions begun at Brest-Litovsk, although they were willing to have final formal negotiations carried on and the signatures to the preliminary agreement affixed at some place to be agreed upon after the debate. He continued:

"As for the conduct of the negotiations, the atmosphere in which they take place is extremely important. It must be mentioned that since the conclusion of the exchange of views before the temporary interruption of the negotiations much has happened which appeared calculated to create doubt as to the sincere intention of the Russian Government to arrive at speedy peace with the Powers of the Quadruple Alliance. I may refer to the work of certain semi-official declarations of the Russian Government against the Central Powers, especially the declaration of the Petrograd telegraph agency, which is regarded abroad as the semi-official Russian agency."

It reproduced in detail a reply M. Joffe (a member of the Russian delegation) is alleged to have made at the sitting on Dec. 28, which, as the protocol shows, originated solely in the imagination of its author. The entirely unfounded report has had a good deal to do in confusing judgment in regard to the course of the negotiations and in endangering their results."

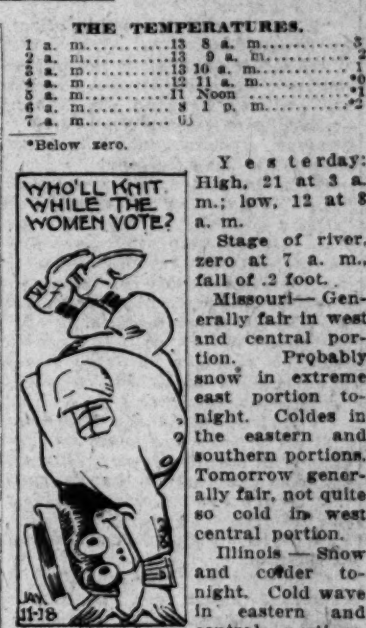

(This dispatch may mean either: 1. That the peace negotiations between Russia and the Central Powers are terminated; or, 2. That the specific terms of the Central Powers, expressed Dec. 25 (which included reference to a "general peace") are withdrawn because of failure of the allies to enter the conference, and that negotiation with Russia may continue over some new proposals for a separate peace.)

Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, at a full sitting of the peace conference at Brest-Litovsk yesterday, said that Russia's allies had not replied to the invitation to participate in a separate peace between Russia and the Central Powers.

He gave reasons for not wishing to transfer the negotiations to neutral territory and said that if the Russians were animated by the same intentions as the Central Powers, the result of the negotiations would be satisfactory. If not, responsibility for war would fall exclusively on the Russians.

Dr. von Kuehlmann, the German Foreign Minister, said he considered that the difficulties which had interrupted the previous negotiations were not sufficient to justify the failure of the peace work and a resumption of hostilities. He said that it was the fixed and unchangeable determination of the Central Powers not to conduct elsewhere the peace negotiations begun at Brest-Litovsk.

Account of Peace Party. A Brest-Litovsk dispatch, giving an account of the session yesterday, said it was opened at 11 o'clock, all the delegations, including the Ukrainians, participating. Talks

GEPHART PREDICTS NEW ORDER FOR FURTHER WHEAT SAVING

Local Food Chairman, Returned From Washington Conference, Tells of Plan.

William F. Gephart, chairman of the United States Food Administration Committee of St. Louis, returned from Washington early today, after attending a conference last Monday and Tuesday of the State and city food administrators from 38 states.

The Food Administration, Gephart said, is about to announce new regulations governing bakeries and the manufacture of all wheat products, which will greatly increase the saving of these commodities.

"The decision of the Government to save the allies 90,000,000 additional bushels of wheat," Gephart continued, "will necessitate greatly increased conservation on the part of the American people. These new regulations have this end in view."

After inquiring among the food administrators of the large eastern cities, I find that St. Louis has responded as well as any city in the country, in the observance of the law and regulations of the Food Administration. The prices of foodstuffs here are in some cases lower than they are in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and several other cities, while some considerably bread."

NET PROFIT 34.65 PER CENT

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Net profits far surpassing all previous records are reported by Swift & Co., packers, for the fiscal year ending with September, 1917. The profits given are equivalent to 34.65 per cent on the company's $100,000,000 capital stock, compared with the net profits of $20,465,000 in the 1916 fiscal year which were equal to 27.29 per cent on the $75,000,000 stock then outstanding.

Leish is known to have started across the bridge on the pilot of an engine about 4 a. m. He is supposed to have fallen from the footboard.

VIRGINIA SENATE FOR DRY ACT

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—The national prohibition amendment was ratified last night by the Virginia Senate by a vote of 20 to 8. A resolution to submit the amendment to a referendum was defeated 23 to 10. It is expected that the House of Delegates will vote today.

Virginia will be the second State to ratify the amendment if the action of the House is favorable.

Leon Trotsky's Message

"The Bolsheviks and the World Peace"

One of the Most Remarkable Documents of the Great War

STARTS SUNDAY IN THE POST-DISPATCH

In these remarkable articles that strike the keynote of international affairs, the Bolshevik Minister of Foreign Affairs makes it clear that the present Russian Government is NOT PRO-GERMAN, but is opposed to militarism, Hohenzollernism and the Hapsburg dynasty and misrule. "Russian freedom," says Trotsky, "must not be bought at the expense of France and Belgium."

Who Is Trotsky?

Hardly six months ago he was living in a New York tenement working as a journalist to pay off small debts. Today Leon Trotsky is one of the central figures of the world war. Furthermore, these articles by Trotsky will tell just what the Bolsheviks are striving for and hope to get—the world revolution—a democratic peace against imperialism and capitalism and the state everywhere—and the establishment of a free world-wide democracy. To understand all phases of the war you must understand Russia. To understand Russia, Trotsky's message must be read. These articles will appear only in the

POST-DISPATCH, Beginning Next Sunday, AND EACH DAY THEREAFTER

Pasha, the Turkish Grand Vizier, called the meeting to order and turned over the chair to Dr. von Kuehlmann, who said:

"Inasmuch as changes have occurred in the composition of some of the delegations, it will not be out of place to give a short survey of the history of the course of the negotiations."

After a lengthy review of the proceedings to date, Dr. von Kuehlmann said he hoped they would lead to a salutary result. His hope was based on knowledge gained during the negotiations and on the expressing by the Russian delegation of the Russian people's wish for secure and lasting peace. He continued:

"The difficulties that the negotiations met with up to the time the peace work and, presumably, the negotiation of war in the east, with its unforeseen consequences."

View of Hungarian Premier.

Premier Wekerle of Hungary came to Berlin, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Associated Press, to discuss credit and financial conditions with the German treasury and financiers. He is quoted as saying: "We hope for peace with Russia. There are no questions of national economies must first be settled. We discussed what should be done for the financial demands of the state."

The negotiations at Brest-Litovsk, Premier Wekerle said, have been taken as a favorable course. He said that there was a special desire on both sides to make safe the economic part of a preliminary peace. The Ukrainians, he added, had shown a great conciliatory spirit and they had great interest in entering economic questions with the Central Powers. The Premier continued: "It can only rejoice us if independent Ukraine extends us her hand."

Lenine Expresses Fear That War Must Continue.

LONDON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik President, although he has possibly gone on a holiday to Finland, also possibly may go to Stockholm to confer with German and Austrian Socialists, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily News says. In a speech before his departure from Petrograd, Premier Lenine said:

"I fear we shall have to stop the demobilization and prepare for war. If Germany and her allies do not accept our conditions of peace we will declare a revolutionary war on them."

The correspondent emphasizes the independence of an agreement between Bolshevik and Ukrainian negotiators, as the position of the Rada has lessened their chances of obtaining a satisfactory peace. He said that if the Germans could buy off the Ukraine, the significance within Germany of Trotsky's stand would be cut in half. The correspondent adds that nothing is more foolish than to suppose that because the Ukraine opposes the Bolsheviks it therefore favors the allies and prospect of the war.

Continuing previous reports that the Bolsheviks are preparing to re-establish the fighting power of the army against a possible final break in the negotiations with the Central Powers, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily News says that they are not attempting to reanimate the old worn-out army, but to create a new and much smaller one. Concerning this new army, Foreign Minister Trotsky is reported to have said: "It will wage not war, but revolution. Its front trenches will be barricades against oppressors."

The Bolsheviks doubt whether the German soldiers will advance, but if they do, and take more territory, they will be no nearer an end of the war. The correspondent says that the greatest difficulties of the Bolsheviks in these preparations are transport and supply, of which the former is the less hopeful question. Ensign Krylenko, the Bolshevik Commander in Chief, is reported to be organizing a volunteer army, and has ordered all officers to return to the posts they held before the Bolshevik revolution.

Attempt at Class Warfare.

In reference to the civil wars in different parts of Russia, the correspondent says they are not wars by one part of Russia against another, but attempts to spread class warfare in those parts where the proletariat has not yet obtained the upper hand. "Think of the Bolsheviks not warring against the Ukraine, but against the Bourgeoisie Ukrainian Rada; not with the Cossack country, but with the military government of the Cossacks."

Senator Brady Critically Ill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Senator James H. Brady of Idaho is critically ill at his home here as the result of heart attacks. His physicians have hopes for his recovery. Senator Brady was taken ill on a train Saturday while en route from Chicago to Washington.

SENATORS' QUESTION BAKER IN INQUIRY ABOUT ARMY SUPPLIES

Senator McKellar, "Yes," said the Secretary.

"Your statement that we have substantially enough gives a wrong impression to the country, when we have only enough for men actually in the fighting and not for those in training," Senator Wadsworth interjected.

"Gives Wrong Impression."

"I agree with Senator Wadsworth," said Chairman Chamberlain, "that your statement gives a wrong impression to the country. It was not your purpose, but it is its effect."

"What I meant to say and what I want the country to understand," Baker replied earnestly, "is that all the troops in France will be adequately equipped with artillery and arms."

"Probably," observed Senator Chamberlain.

"I have assurances to that effect," Baker testified.

"The statement leaves the impression that the situation is a rosy one and that we have all the artillery needed," said Senator Wadsworth. "I disagree. It is not an accurate description of the situation."

Baker insisted that his statement regarding adequacy of ordnance for "rush needs" was substantially correct. He admitted that ordnance was needed for training men in camp. Time needed to train men in France, he said, will give time to increase ordnance supplies.

Senator Weeks cited the general ordnance shortage at Camp Bowie, Tex., testified to by Major-General Greble, commandant.

"You have given the impression that every camp has enough rifles," Senator Weeks observed. "How can you conform that to the statement that there are no requirements of artillery?"

"I did not make that statement," said Baker.

"You gave that impression," "I said 'futile rush needs' are filled," explained Baker.

"But you ought to define your statement; it gives the country the impression that every need in the camps is supplied," said Weeks.

Baker said rifle shortages since Gen. Greble reported had been substantially corrected. "It would have been very fortunate if we could have gotten machine guns sooner," he added.

"Is there any reason why 1200 should be held in storage?" asked Senator Hitchcock, referring to testimony by Gen. Crozier to that effect. "I didn't know that," said Baker.

Machine Gun Delays.

Reverting to delays in machine gun deliveries, Senator Hitchcock deplored tardy contracts for Lewis guns and Baker rejoined that large production of Browning guns would begin in February. This aroused Senator Hitchcock.

"That isn't so," he retorted sharply, slapping his hands together at the Secretary. "We won't have a large quantity before 1919 in actual use. We haven't one now."

"We have nine," Baker suggested, smiling. Seriously he added that production was being speeded up and that his latest information was that quantity production of the Browning guns would begin in February.

Sensors Hitchcock and Weeks both called the Secretary's attention to testimony of Gen. Crozier and Trotsky is reported to have said: "It will wage not war, but revolution. Its front trenches will be barricades against oppressors."

The Bolsheviks doubt whether the German soldiers will advance, but if they do, and take more territory, they will be no nearer an end of the war. Senator Brady Critically Ill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Senator James H. Brady of Idaho is critically ill at his home here as the result of heart attacks. His physicians have hopes for his recovery. Senator Brady was taken ill on a train Saturday while en route from Chicago to Washington.

Deficiency in Saddles.

Secretary Baker added that on Jan. 5 there was a deficiency of 50 per cent in saddles, 40 per cent in saddle blankets; plenty of horses on hand but a small shortage of mules; canteens about 40 per cent short of Feb. 1 needs; small arm ammunition short with production rapidly increasing and motor vehicles short in Europe and in camps. Standardization of motor trucks had delayed supplying canteens.

"Why nine months after war are there no rolling kitchens; isn't that unreasonable?" demanded Senator Weeks.

"I can't answer that," Baker replied. "I suppose it is because the training units are not in the field and do not need rolling kitchens. I have not had one single complaint regarding food."

"When are these camps going to have all the supplies they need," Senator Weeks demanded, pounding his fist on the table.

"No comprehensive answer can be given to that," Baker replied, adding that he would give no detailed forecast.

Returning to the question of purchases by the Supplies Committee of the Council of National Defense, Secretary Baker said:

"The process is being stopped and I think it is stopped now. The Quartermaster-General's office."

Objection to Eisenhower.

"I want to protest against employment of Mr. Eisenhower because of developments in this committee regarding Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Kaplan," said the Senator. "While Mr. Eisenhower may be equipped, the revelations before this committee, in my opinion show that Mr. Eisenhower should not be retained in any capacity."

Secretary Baker, in reply, praised Eisenhower, his business enterprise and judgment.

"If everything I know he has done," said Baker, adding that Eisenhower had saved the Government many millions of dollars. He promised to study the committee's testimony regarding Eisenhower's services.

Baker Cross-Questioned Yesterday on Prepared Statement.

After Secretary Baker had read his exhaustive prepared statement yesterday, questions began to fly from every side of the committee table, launching a cross examination that was not concluded at adjournment.

Chairman Chamberlain and other committee members wanted to know particularly about delays in furnishing machine guns and rifles and much attention was devoted to the army's supply purchasing system. Baker admitted there had been some mistake and delays, but declared that all fighting men in France were adequately equipped and armed, and that all sent over would be. He took full responsibility for delay in approving a machine gun, holding that the value of the Browning gun now developed was worth it. He also said the superior weapon obtained by having the British Enfield rifle re-chambered for American ammunition compensated for the delay there.

Members of the committee were frank in their disapproval of the secret purchasing system of the department. They did not shake Baker's support of it, however. He insisted that it was essential to guard against publicity concerning plans engaged on war work.

Canceled Rag Contract.

The Secretary said he canceled the much-discussed rag-sorting contract on the recommendation of the Quartermaster-General and because the Government proposed to do the rag-sorting work itself. The Rag Sorting Co., he said, was to get a profit of only 1/2 cent a pound.

"Are you willing to assume responsibility for organization of the rag-sorting plant?" asked Senator McKellar.

Secretary Baker said he would not. "I am not a rag-sorting expert," he said. "I am a soldier."

"I couldn't escape it if I wanted to," Baker answered. "I delegated my authority to Mr. Eisenhower. I know nothing improper about it."

Senator McKellar referred to the relationship between Samuel Kaplan of the Supplies Committee and brother interested in the sorting plant, and Secretary Baker said he did not know of the relationship until recently.

"Do you think a policy of that kind is wise?"

"It has turned out to be unwise," said Secretary Baker. "But you can't get anybody to buy things wisely unless you get men who are experienced in their business."

"How much did the blunder or whatever you may call it, cost the Government?" asked Senator Chamberlain.

"Nothing," Baker replied.

Questioned About Secrecy.

Questioned about secrecy attending the awarding of army contracts, Secretary Baker declared he issued an order that they not be made public, and that he considered it a wise policy.

"Don't you know the American people abhor secrecy?" asked Senator McKellar.

"I think," said Baker, "that the location of plants should not be made public, as a military policy."

"Did it endanger factories working for the Navy Department which did make contracts public?" he was asked.

"I can't say as to that."

Senator Freely declared that the criticism leveled against the system was that the policy of secrecy permitted some men to get contracts, but prevented others from getting the business.

Baker said that so far as he knew he personally never was advised of the change in specifications by which shoddy was used in uniforms. He had been advised the uniforms were adequate when shoddy was used.

Objectionable 31-Year Franchise

AMENDMENTS which the Aldermanic Public Utilities Committee propose to add to the pending United Railways "compromise" bill, and which represent changes from the provisions of "Ordinance No. 2," are the following:

Payment of the mill tax, now aggregating $2,300,000, with interest at 6 per cent a year, within five years after the company's acceptance of the franchise.

Requirements for a "minimum service." This is the same as the State Public Service Commission has ordered and which the company contends and the State Commission says is being furnished at this time.

An obligation on the part of the company to set aside an annual allowance (the sum of which has not yet been specified) for extension.

A provision under which the city, if desirous of exercising the right of purchasing the company's properties, could condemn them after an appraisal by a commission appointed by the Circuit Court.

Redrafting of a section that in the former bill seemed to bestow immunity from the payment of mill taxes or franchise taxes on any "other company" whose tracks the United Railways "used in whole or in part," so that the exemption from Goldstein that they oppose a bill authorizing an appropriation for expert advice.

Question of Service.

With the amendments that the Public Utilities Committee last night pledged itself to add to the pending bill, the service on the United Railways under its new franchise, need be only what is now being furnished. The amendments merely incorporate into the bill the orders of the State Public Service Commission, with which the company now contends it is complying.

In addition to the privileges which the company exercises under its present franchise, it will have under the new grant the right to operate mail, express and freight cars, subject to regulations established by the Board of Public Service.

The capitalization of $60,000,000 fixed in "Ordinance No. 2" is recognized in the bill which the Public Utilities Committee purposes reporting to the Board of Aldermen next Friday. As in "Ordinance No. 2," there will be also in the new bill a provision exempting the company from the payment of any mill tax or franchise tax during the period of the grant—31 years. A tax of 3 per cent on the company's gross revenues and a super-tax on net earnings in excess of 7 per cent on its capitalization of $60,000,000 is to replace the mill tax and franchise taxes, which now amount to $475,000 a year. Three per cent on the company's gross earnings last year would have yielded about $375,000.

The Board of Control, which was contemplated in the original bill, is retained in the bill which the Public Utilities Committee now advocates. One member of this board is to represent the city and one the company. A third is to be appointed by the St. Louis Court of Appeals in the event of a disagreement between the other two. The Director of Public Utilities of his proxy is to be the city's member.

This board of control is to have supervision and authority over the extensions and service for which the bill purports to provide. The mileage and number and place of the extensions are not yet specified in the amendments, and Aldermen Baur, Reis, Wiehe and Hampe last night objected to a specific provision on the subject.

Baur said his constituents might want one of the extensions. Chairman Schwartz urged that the extension of the Tower Grove and of the Lee avenue lines be required in the bill. No agreement to demand the Tower Grove and Lee avenue extensions was reached by the committee.

At the time City Counselor Dues announced that amendments would be prepared in his office for the Public Utilities Committee, he explained that they were requested by Alderman Reis, one of the members. Reis now says that he did not request Dues to draft the amendments.

Chairman Schwartz last Tuesday night referred to the amendments as "Smith's amendments," meaning Consulting Engineer C. E. Smith. The latter was not in the city yesterday. Chairman Schwartz proposed that the committee wait Smith's return so that he could be summoned to explain the amendments, but other members of the committee objected. Finally they exacted from Schwartz a promise that there would be no further consideration of the amendments or the completed bill after next Monday night.

Chairman Schwartz repeatedly asked members of the committee who were counseling haste "why they were in such a rush" and "why so much haste." Alderman Reis answered that "something must be done; this committee has dilly-dallied long enough."

INTERNATIONAL EQUITY U. S. WAR. AIM, SAYS TAFT

"President's Stand on Belgium and Alsace Fixed Measure of Germany's Defeat."

"PEACE MUST BE LASTING"

"A Great Danger Is Propaganda Among Allies for Inconclusive Agreement."

By WILLIAM H. TAFT.
(By Courtesy of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—The Prussian cabal conducting this war are using false peace proposals as they use poisoned gas. They would destroy the morale of the French and Italian peoples by the deceitful suggestion that Prussia & Co. are willing to make peace without victory, while the allied Governments in their hunger for conquest and territory continue the war. They would stimulate the faded German and Austrian peoples to further effort by charging the allies with a purpose to destroy Germany and disintegrate the German people. The constant semi-official peace chatter from Berlin and Vienna is an encouraging symptom of the anxious concern of the Potsdamers over the growing discontent among the peoples of the Central Powers, which finds expression through both branches of the Socialist party.

A great danger in this war is propaganda among the allies for an inconclusive peace. The Potsdamers are fighting for their lives. A peace that shall leave them in power will be a victory for them and a defeat for the allies. The millions of lives and billions of treasure will have been spent by the world in vain.

Message Helps to Clear Air.
Three things have just happened to clear the air and lessen the danger from German insidious peace parleys. One is the revelations of the German-proposed terms of peace with Russia, and the others are Mr. Lloyd George's speech and the message of President Wilson. The first discloses the hollow nature of the German pretense that it is really willing to make peace without indemnity or annexation. By insisting that the Russian army shall demobilize and remain in possession of the western provinces of Russia from the Baltic to the Black Sea, while the peoples thereof shall determine what their government shall be, the Potsdamers have enabled the wayfarer Bolshevik to see that they propose to make those provinces German in fact. Everyone else in the world has seen this since the parleying began. The Socialists of Germany of both factions have seen it. Is this, then, another "triumph" for Potsdam diplomacy?

Mr. Lloyd George's speech defining the aims of the allies is his best. It will bear reading and rereading and a close study of the words used. They were weighed. They were moderate. They were parliamentary. They were clear and they were as definite as the subject matter and the circumstances could possibly permit. The President's message, while in general in accord with that of the British Premier, is more ambitious and essays settlement of many issues on general principles of equity that may prove difficult in practical negotiations. It is to be construed as giving a general basis upon which the United States would be glad to make peace, and not as an ultimatum in its detailed array of conditions. It is most important in making the restoration of Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine a sine qua non of peace and of pledging the United States to stand shoulder to shoulder with England and France in enforcing it.

Measure of Germany's Defeat.
This is the real crux of both addresses. We may all rejoice that justice to Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine is now made the only measure of the defeat of Germany with which we shall be satisfied. Germany's crime against Belgium in 1914 and since has been rank and cruel. Germany wrested Alsace-Lorraine from France in 1871, and has spent 40 years trying to govern them. She has failed in all that time to make them German. Her despotic treatment of their people has kept them French. They should, therefore, be returned to France. Such a result may well usher in a world-wide rule of international equity.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George reiterate their previous declarations that the allies are not seeking to destroy the German nation or people or Government. Neither explains exactly how we are going to insure respect for treaty obligations by the Potsdamers if they continue in power. Both have left that to inference. Mr. Wilson insists that we can only deal with those who have the mandate of a majority of the Reichstag. We need not worry over this. If the German people under the lead of the Potsdamers are defeated and the restoration of Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine is enforced, we can be sure that the Potsdamers will cease to rule and a repentant Germany with her eyes opened will give up her aspiration to military domination of the world and will become a member of the restored family of nations, amenable to considerations of honor and morality. This is our chief end in the war.

WILSON SPEECH WOULD BE MORE EFFECTIVE THAN BOMBS

Bryan's View of Worth of War Aims Address If It Can Be Given to German Masses.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 11.—Former Secretary William J. Bryan told a Post-Dispatch correspondent here he was greatly pleased over President Wilson's statement of war conditions, and declared that it should be distributed among the German and Austrian soldiers inside the battle lines.

"Following, as it does, the statement made by Lloyd George, the British Premier, a few days ago, it would seem to open the way for peace negotiations. It will not only greatly encourage our own people, but it ought to convince the people of Germany, who have been misled by the military party there into the belief that they are compelled to fight for their very existence.
"The President's statement, supported by the statement of Lloyd George, ought to convince them that they are not menaced in their real interests, but that peace on the terms proposed means liberty and prosperity for them.

"If the President's statement can reach the masses it will, I am sure, have a tremendous effect in hastening peace. I hope the airplanes will scatter it broadcast among the German and Austrian soldiers. It will be more effective than bombs."

BUSCH A BETTER HORSE BUYER THAN SOLDIER, HE SAYS

Brewer's Son Declares He Offered His Services as Such to the Government.

Adolphus Busch III, 27 years old, son of August Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, who was denied deferred classification on the ground of a dependent wife by the Kirkwood Exemption Board, Wednesday, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he would not appeal to the District Board despite his belief that he has valid claims for industrial exemption.
Busch in his questionnaire sought to have himself placed in Class 4, but the Board put him in Class 2-A composed of men who will be called to the colors immediately after Class 1 is exhausted. Besides a dependent wife, the young man stated that he held high positions with the Busch-Suizer Diesel Engine Co. and O'Fallon Coal Co., businesses necessary to the conduct of the war. The Kirkwood board considered only the dependency claim. Industrial exemptions are made by the District Board.
Busch had until tomorrow night to appeal to the District Board and in event of failure there could have gone direct to the President under the regulations. Class 2-A is composed of men whose wives are not wholly dependent on them.

Mrs. Busch, before their marriage, was Mrs. Florence Parker Lambert, and received $12,000 a year alimony from her former husband, Marlon L. Lambert. She forfeited this alimony, and her claim to a residence in Hortense place, by her marriage to Busch. The Busches have a daughter 3 1/2 years old and Mrs. Busch has three children by her first marriage.

When he was asked by the reporter whether his wife is at present dependent on him, Busch replied: "Yes, I am her support."
He was then asked to describe the nature of his duties with the engine company and the coal company, and to say whether he considered himself necessary to either.

"I am not necessary to the engine company," he said, "although I take an active interest in the business. I do consider, however, that I am necessary to the business of the O'Fallon Coal Co. I suppose it is true that any man, in any position, can be spared, but my work with the coal company is necessary work. I go there every day, pass on the big orders, sign all contracts, and keep in active touch with the business of the firm, of which I am vice president and director."
"I am second vice president and a director of the engine company, which is now working on $3,000,000 worth of Government orders. I am not a technical engineer, and am not an accountant. I go through the plant frequently, and attend directors' meetings, and I have a pretty good knowledge of the business."

Busch said he offered his services to the Government two months ago as a horse buyer, a work in which he felt that his knowledge of horses would make him of value. He offered to work as a $1-a-year man and pay his own expenses, but the offer was not accepted by the Government.

Horse Show Exhibitor.
Busch was not a direct heir under the will of his grandfather, Adolphus Busch, but he presented claims against the estate for $15,926.08, shortly after the probating of the will, in the fall of 1912, and these claims were allowed. Of this amount, $10,000 represented a promise made to Busch at the time of his wedding, a few months before his grandfather's death. Busch was for several years an exhibitor at horse shows.

Well Clothing Co. Again Increasing Store Space.
The Well Clothing Co. is again increasing its store space in order to accommodate its business. It has leased the building at 807 Washington avenue, adjoining the present store, and workmen are already tearing down the partition walls and getting the additional room ready for occupancy. When the alterations are completed the Well Company will be one of the largest concerns of its kind in the United States. The company's president states that in preparation for this expansion the present stocks of men's and boys' clothing will be reduced to a minimum and to accomplish this prices will be cut for the great Expansion Sale now being advertised in the Post-Dispatch. The company's motto, since it was established seven years ago, has been "Quick sales and small profits."

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE
People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.
Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the amazingly effective result.
Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 30c and 25c per box. All druggists.

OBSERVER TELLS OF SERIOUS LACK OF FOOD IN BERLIN

Describes Economic and Political Conditions in German Capital as "Absolutely Awful."

PUBLIC INTENSELY BITTER

There Would Be a Revolt, Only,
as the People Say, 'Women
Can't Make a Revolution.'

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The World
prints the following special cable
from London:

"An observer at first hand, who left Germany in the middle of December, and for whose trustworthiness the Morning Post vouches, gives an amazing account of conditions in Berlin, both economic and political.

"The situation in Berlin," he said,
"is absolutely awful. For the great mass of the population there is hardly any light, warmth, clothing or shoes, and an appalling lack of food.
"The work of the city is carried on by decrepit men and women. On one occasion I saw a coal cart with a Russian prisoner in the driver's seat and four women literally in rags carrying bags of coal in a house.
"The linen worn by both sexes is abominably dirty, for there is no soap.

"There is intensely bitter feeling among the people against the Government, and there would be a revolt, only, as the people are always saying, 'Women can't make a revolution.' The Government knows this and forbids the return to Berlin of able-bodied men, and officers are allowed to return only in exceptional circumstances.

"Von Hindenburg is loathed by the people of Berlin. Placards with his picture, appealing for subscriptions to the loans, were torn down, although they were not touched in South Germany.

"All over Berlin notices are posted offering 3000 marks (normally $750)
to anyone informing against persons criticizing the Government, the Emperor, the war or officers.

"The population of Berlin is divided roughly into three classes. The upper military class, which adores
Hindenburg and hates Ludendorff;
the middle class, which loves Luden-dorff because he gives high posts in the army to Jews, who are making vast sums out of the war, and the lower working class, which loathes
Hindenburg, Ludendorff and especially the Emperor, and ridicules the Crown Prince unmercifully. Otherwise nobody mentions the imperial family, which has ceased to be a dominant factor.

"The well-to-do get along fairly comfortably, because the necessities are purchasable at fabulous sums.
A ham costs $90. A special restaurant dinner for three costing $10 consists of soup, some tiny fish, a fragment of some sort of meat, a few carrots, a piece of turnip and an uneatable pudding.

"News is circulated secretly among the officers that a recent fire or explosion in the Krupp works destroyed 250 new airplanes.

"The officers know that the Turks are utterly sick of war.
"Everything is being moved west.
Double rails are being laid wherever possible, creating the hope that food may come from Russia.

"From Berlin to Baale, including

Germany Never Was in Such Danger of Collapse, Says Correspondent.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 11 (By A. P.)
—Germany never was in such danger of collapse from internal and external difficulties as at present, says

the correspondent in Germany of the Tijd in an analysis of the existing situation. The political struggle concentrated around Foreign Secretary von Kuhlmann has been reflected in violent scenes in the main committee of the Reichstag. Public action of the Socialist minority cannot longer be resisted, and even should militarism gain a temporary victory, the correspondent thinks reaction will follow quickly.

Russia's example is said to have infected popular and military circles.
The food question, national mourning, the dislocation of industry, the growing desire for peace and fear of a new offensive on the west front threaten to lead to a tragic phase if the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk fail, and a domestic explosion is inevitable.

'MORE THAN $4.50 A DAY NEEDED TO SUPPORT A FAMILY OF FIVE'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—(By A.
A. P.)—In a statement supported by statistics, Edward L. Keenan, president of the Central Labor Union, told the National Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board yesterday that the head of a family of five must make more than $4.50 a day to support his family. The food bill of a family of five, under prevailing price schedules, Keenan said, cannot possibly be figured at less than $12.14 a week.

Keenan was chairman of a committee of twelve which made a canvass to determine food prices and other expenses the industrial workers must meet.

Including housing, fuel, lighting and other necessary expenses, as well as insurance and doctors' fees, Keenan's figures purported to show it would cost a family of five $1,442.80
a year to exist.

GERMAN SOLDIERS TELL OF MUTINY OF 25,000 IN EAST

Camp Said to Have Been Established in Kovno Woods, and Trains Seized.

STATEMENT BY PRISONER

Declares Men Threaten to Attack From Rear if Offensive Is Resumed in Russia.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1918, by Press Pub. Co.)
PETROGRAD, Jan. 11.—An armed camp of 25,000 German soldiers, who have mutinied against being shifted to the western front, is holding the forest near Kovno and threatening an attack upon the other German troops from the rear if they resume the offensive against Russia.

That is the story reported by four German soldiers who recently deserted, and who offered to enlist in the new international army now being organized to fight for socialist principles under the direction of the bureau headed by Boris Reinstein, international delegate of the Socialist Labor party of America. The soldiers are named Lieut. Wilhelm Mueller, 347th Infantry, 173d brigade; Karl Friedrich, Reichold Kurier and Reinhardt, Breslau, all members of the eighty-eighth shrapnel-shooters, eighty-seventh division. Lieut. Mueller signed this statement given to Reinstein:

"For some time the men under 35 years old have been taken from divisions on the Eastern front to go to the Western front, leaving only the older men in the divisions. Many soldiers mutinied and were forced into trains, but deserted in masses in the forests and soon formed a great army of outlaws with rifles, machine guns and even cannon.

250 Loyalists Killed in Battle.
"Already these men are so strong they have defeated the troops led against them. In one battle 250 loyal Kaiser troops were killed.

"Efforts to cut them off from food and ammunition failed, because they descended on villages in force and cut up the troops sent to stop them. They also stopped trains, taking provisions and arms and winning recruits. They have sent word to the front that they will attack the German troops in the rear if the present peace negotiations fail and a new attack is ordered on Russia.

The camp has been in existence several weeks. The Government is unable to bring troops to attack as the mutineers capture the approaching trains.

Lieut. Mueller says the troops consider the western front certain death. The army is so depressed the Government cannot find sufficient troops of good morale to lead against Russia.

Lieut. Mueller's story is corroborated by others. When questioned by a Russian Colonel who knew the Kovno region, they gave convincing details. All agree that the food situation is serious in Germany, particularly the poorer parts of the cities.

Reinstein Recruiting Army.
Artillery in Berlin is constantly ready to meet a proletarian uprising. Food is better in the villages, although the soldiers are surrounded by starving children. The soldiers are refusing furloughs because they are better fed at the front. Reinstein, although not a Bolshevik, has been named chief of the Department of International Revolutionary Propaganda under the Foreign Office by Trotsky, on account of his international Socialist reputation. He lived years ago in America and is now in charge of the work of propaganda in enlisting the international army, chiefly among 3,000,000 German and Austrian prisoners.

Reinstein is issuing a daily paper in all languages for distribution among these men, which is also being sent out as propaganda across the lines. He explained to me that the army is exclusively for carrying out the Russian Socialist program if Russia is compelled to resume the fight.

QUOTES EXCERPTS FROM HALE'S TALK WITH THE KAISER

Former President of Century Magazine Tells of the Suppressed Interview.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The New York Times publishes the following dispatch from Philadelphia:

"For the first time excerpts from William Bayard Hale's article on the Kaiser, which was suppressed by the Century Magazine 10 years ago, on request of the German Government, were made public last night through William Ellsworth, for many years the president of the Century company. Mr. Hale's article for the Century was prepared after the original interview had been suppressed, and in its turn it met the same fate."

"As near as I can remember," said Mr. Ellsworth, "the Emperor said: 'Taft had the wool pulled over his eyes when he was in Rome, so that he made the arrangements he did with the Philippine Priests.'"

"Another statement, as I remember it," continued the speaker, "said 'Archbishop Ireland is a secret enemy of America.'"

"This revelation was made by Mr. Ellsworth in a lecture last night at Witherspoon Hall in the university course, and was heard by a large audience. Continuing, Mr. Ellsworth said:

"My recollection is that there was no war talk by the Emperor, nor can I recall that he attacked England. I do remember, though, that he was especially vindictive toward Turkey, while the attack on Japan was also bitter. My only reason for revealing the gist of the famous interview at this time is that we should do everything in our power to harm the Emperor. I hear there is another copy in existence somewhere and it is the duty of the man who has it to produce it and publish it."

Attack on Catholic Church.
"His attack on the Roman Catholic church was certainly no such interview as any monarch should have given, and a complete publication can do great harm to the Kaiser in Austria, Spain and other countries, where there are great masses of Roman Catholics among the nationals of these nations."

"In the autumn of 1908 William Bayard Hale, then connected with the New York Times, decided that he could obtain an interview with the German Emperor. He went to Germany and from the Foreign Office obtained consent to interview the Emperor, but on condition that his remarks should be submitted to the Foreign Office for approval."

"Dr. Hale agreed and went to the Norwegian waters, where the Emperor was aboard his imperial yacht. And for two hours on the moonlit deck the Kaiser talked while Hale made notes. Returning to Berlin, Hale submitted the interview to the Foreign Office. It was agreed that it might be published, but there was a stipulation that it was too sensational for publication in a newspaper, but should be given to some review or, in other words, published in a magazine."

"Hale wired to us regarding it and we offered to purchase the interview for $1000. We had the interview in type in October and all ready for our December issue, which went on the street the latter part of November. On Oct. 2 the Kaiser gave his famous interview to the London Telegraph, which created a tremendous sensation all over the world and which the Foreign Office tried vainly to suppress."

"It was only a few days afterward that Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century, was called to the telephone for a conversation after this fashion:

"Has the Century a manuscript of an interview with the Kaiser?"

Suppression Agreed To.

"The editors talked the matter over and one of our bright young men went to the De Vinne Press, where 100,000 of these sheets were ready. Without anybody being the wiser of his mission he had these packed and placed in a safe deposit vault. Every proof and every sheet containing a word of that interview was destroyed, while the expenses between $2000 and $3000, were paid by us."

"The news of the affair leaked out and one newspaper offered $12,000 for a proof, another increased the offer to $15,000. But they were, of course, refused. At that time we were friendly with the German Government and everybody held the Emperor in fair esteem, so that it was a natural thing to accede to this request."

"However, a few days afterward a man met Gilder in the street and said: 'Have you any copies of the Kaiser's speech?' 'Certainly,' he said, 'we have 100,000 in the safe deposit vaults.'"

"Well," asked the questioner, 'what would you advise the German Government to do with them?' 'Oh,' said Gilder, jokingly, 'why not send a warship over for them,' then he walked away."

"Imagine his surprise when some weeks later he was called on the telephone and informed that a German warship had arrived for the sheets. Sure enough there was a cruiser, and while there was much conjecture as to the reason she arrived, none really learned her mission."

"The cases were all taken aboard at night and she sailed away. Some time after this one of our editors was at a dinner, when a young German naval officer sidled his chair to him and said: 'I suppose you would like to know what became of those sheets of the Kaiser's interview?' 'Well,' the young officer said, 'when we got 500 miles from New York we threw the first case overboard. It floated instead of sinking and a boat was lowered and sent away to retrieve it. Then for some time the officers and men were kept busy in the stoke room tearing and burning every one of these sheets.' 'I wish now we had published that interview 10 years ago. It would have hurt the Emperor tremendously and we want to do him all the harm possible. It contains a terrific arraignment of the Roman Catholic church.'"

"Mr. Ellsworth then retorted the allusion to Mr. Taft and to Archbishop Ireland, after which he told more regarding the final disposition of the sheets."

"One of them," he said, "was given to the German Museum. Only recently I wrote to a United States Senator, calling his attention to the fact and asking that he obtain the interview for publication. But I read today that the paper has disappeared and as Kuno Francke, a German of German, was the curator, it stands to reason that an ardent man like him would not permit such a document to remain where it could harm the Fatherland."

"I have heard that there is another copy extant, and if there is it seems to be the duty of the owner to produce it and have the contents published, for it would do incalculable harm to the German Empire, especially with his present ally, Austria, because of the attack on the Catholic church."

Your Child Must Be Strong

Nature starts most children right, and it is the parents' duty to keep them so. Happy spirits—eager appetite—deep refreshing sleep—the love of vigorous play—all these things a child must have in abundance now, if the budding man is to be adequately equipped to conquer in life's battles.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan "The Red Blood Builder"

This time-tried tonic promotes energy and health by enriching and purifying the very stream of life—the blood. If your child is pale, nervous, and easily exhausted; if he is a spectator rather than a participant in the health-making games of childhood try a course of Pepto-Mangan. A beneficial result can be expected.

Pepto-Mangan wards off anemia, and strengthens the constitution by putting iron in the blood; it creates multitudes of vigorous red blood cells; the poisons which generate in this sluggish blood are driven out. Rich, red blood invites robust health, and the invitation is usually accepted.

Children like Pepto-Mangan because of its sparkling color and its pleasant aromatic taste. It cannot impair digestion or injure the teeth.

Friendly Warning: Make certain that you get genuine Pepto-Mangan—Gude's, as there are many counterfeits. True Pepto-Mangan is never sold in bulk; it comes only in packages and bottles as pictured here. Read the circular wrapped around the bottle.

Pepto-Mangan is made only by M. J. BREITENBACH CO., New York Manufacturing Chemists

ROSALIE WIRTHLIN IN ARTISTIC SONG RECITAL

Former St. Louis Woman Shows Admirable Execution and Interpretive Gifts.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

ST. LOUIS has been able to boast of two natives who rank among the best American musicians, Mme. Olga Samaroff, pianist, and Theodore Spiering, violinist. To these a third now may be added in the person of Miss Rosalie Wirthlin, contralto, whose recital at the Sheldon Memorial Auditorium last night was a gratifying exposition of the art of song.

Miss Wirthlin possesses in the first place an enviable array of ample and resonant tones, those of the lower register being remarkably rich. Her voice has been disciplined until it performs with unconscious assurance every task laid upon it; and it is managed with an intelligence and a scrupulous taste which make the achievement artistic to an exceptional degree. Such are her keenness of feeling and her thoroughness in penetrating to the very heart of her songs, that each becomes a clear-cut painting of a mood. She has the reassuring poise of one who is completely mistress of what she undertakes, and the charm arising from sincerity and wholesomeness of temperament.

The voluntary ban which many recitalists have placed on German songs during the war leaves a gap which Miss Wirthlin filled by resurrecting several of the delightful English airs of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and by introducing a group of lyrics by present-day American composers. She is a notable interpreter of Greig, as she proved in five of his songs. In fact, two of them, "Die Sennnerin" and "Lichte Nacht," received such dramatic delivery that one wondered why the soloist did not include an operatic aria or so in her program. These would have afforded scope for the full employment of her opulent voice, of which the audience received only passing hints because of the rather light character of her selections.

Piquant Settings of Chinese Poems. The American composers represented were Frank La Forge, John Alden Carpenter and Marion Bauer. The first contributed a stately lyric hymn, "Before the Crucifix," and an appealing love song, "When Your Dear Hands." Carpenter's selections were settings of two ancient Chinese poems, "The Odalisque" and "To a Young Gentleman," to which Miss Wirthlin gave piquant expression. There was also a group of admirable French songs. The singer's distinct enunciation of the English, French and German texts (the last in the Greig numbers) was one of the delights of her performance.

The audience was larger than is usual at Sheldon Memorial concerts, and received the soloist with unusual warmth and friendliness. She deserved a crowded house at an auditorium as spacious as the Odeon. Her assistant on the program was Miss Erin Ballard, a talented and eager-spirited young pianist from New York. She played the accompaniments in rare sympathy with the singer, and offered several solos which were much applauded.

HURLEY SAYS LLOYDS FIGURE 1918 TONNAGE AT 4,500,000

Senate Witness, Puts Estimate of New Shipping at 5,000,000 Tons; Shipyards in U. S. Number 118.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board in a statement last night announced that the production of ship tonnage in the United States in 1918 is estimated at from 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 tons in a special report made by Lloyds at his request. Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co., testifying at the Senate shipping inquiry, said Lloyds had estimated the production at about 2,500,000 tons.

Chairman Hurley said there now are 118 shipyards, 51 for steel ships and 67 for wooden vessels, in the United States, and that the force of the shipyard workers had increased from about 105,000 on Oct. 15 to about 170,000 on Dec. 22. Last April there were 148 ship yards in the country and there now are built or building 716 ships, with 95 per cent of them completed. A keel, he said, has been laid on every completed way.

Hurley said plans for enrolling 28,000 men in shipbuilding are well under way and he believed that two wooden ships would be completed on each way this year, and in the steel yards three and possibly four ships per way would be turned out.

HUGHES CABINET RE-INSTALLED
Vote of No Confidence Introduced in Labor Party.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 11.—Several days of political uncertainty have ended with the re-installation in power of the Nationalist Government headed by William Morris Hughes. There has been no change in the makeup of the Hughes Government.

At one time it was thought that Frank Tudor, the labor leader would be commissioned by the Governor-General to form a labor government. Premier Hughes is accused of breach of faith by some politicians because of the pledge he gave that the Nationalists would not govern the country if conscription was defeated. A motion of no confidence has been introduced in Parliament by Tudor.

FAVORS MORE TAX ON JOHN D.

Mayor Hylan Wants Rockefeller's Personal Assessment Raised.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—An increase in the personal property tax of John D. Rockefeller, who now pays on an assessment of $5,000,000, is suggested by Mayor Hylan in a letter to the president of the tax board, made public today. The Mayor stated that real estate was bearing an undue share of the burden of taxation in the city and he also suggested that the city might follow the Government scheme of "taxing excessive wealth that comes from excessive incomes."

How Fat Actress Was Made Slim

Many stage people now depend entirely upon Marmola Prescription Tablets for reducing and controlling fat. All druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at 75 cents for a large case. Or you can get them by sending price direct to the Marmola Co., 844 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(By A. P.)—Rope manufacturers representing 75 per cent of the total production in the United States have signed an agreement with the Federal Trade Commission whereby they will abandon use of labels which the commission believed misleading as to the composition of the ropes. Commissioner Murdock said the stipulation would remove all misunderstanding of mariners, farmers and manufacturers as to the quality of rope purchased by them.

RUSSIAN, HERE ON MISSION, TELLS OF ARRESTING CZAR

Alexander Bublikoff, Former Member of Duma, in City to Expedite Railway Supplies.

NATION'S FLIGHT CRITICAL

Declares Leaving It to Its Fate Would Be Great Mistake on Part of the Allies.

Alexander Bublikoff, former member of the Russian Duma, who personally arrested Czar Nicholas when the downfall of the Romanoff regime was effected, in an interview at Hotel Statler yesterday described to a Post-Dispatch reporter his experience and the conditions which have brought about the present situation in Russia.

Bublikoff arrived in St. Louis from Chicago as a member of the Russian Mission of Ways of Communication, which is here to inspect industrial plants in the St. Louis district, and to confer with local manufacturing companies which are holding up $2,000,000 worth of railway supplies for Russia. The mission has supervision over $100,000,000 worth of railroad equipment, which is being manufactured for Russia in various parts of the United States.

Tells of Arresting Czar.

Through an interpreter and in the presence of Prof. George Lomonosoff, president of the mission, Bublikoff related the historical incidents surrounding the arrest of the Czar.

"When the Czar heard of the revolutionary movement," said Bublikoff, "he was at the Grand Russian army headquarters. I had been made Minister of Ways of Communication by the newly formed (Kerensky) Government, and learning that the Czar had rallied several loyal regiments about him, with the idea of rushing them to Petrograd, I ordered all trains stopped. The Czar's train was held up, as were the troop trains."

"In the meantime the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council had met and demanded the abdication of the Czar. This was drawn up in the form of an edict and I rushed with it to the army headquarters."

"The Czar had been informed that the revolutionary movement was no local uprising, but was national in scope, so he returned to the headquarters of the army. When I arrived I presented the edict to him in the presence of many officers. Then, acting under instructions from the heads of the temporary Government, I placed him under arrest and, with revolutionary troops, escorted him to the Czar's home at Tsarskoe Selo, 15 miles from Petrograd."

Czar Realized Helplessness.

"The Czar accepted the situation gracefully, seeming to realize that the whole thing was not to be prevented. If the Czar could have rallied enough troops he would have tried to put down the revolution, but it had assumed too large a proportion when he learned of the uprising."

Bublikoff is the head of one of the large private railway systems in Russia. He left Petrograd Sept. 27, but did not arrive in this country until Dec. 26, having been greatly delayed in Norway, because of the difficulty of obtaining passage on an American-bound steamer. He will study industrial conditions while here, and will return to Russia with the idea of teaching American methods to Russian manufacturers.

The Bolshevik Government will not last more than six months, Bublikoff thinks. "The movement is doomed to failure," he said, "because it is not representative of the people. It is composed of radicals."

Kerensky "Chief Persuader."

"When I left Russia I foresaw the downfall of Kerensky's Government. He was not equal to the situation. Kerensky belonged to the intellectual part of Russia, which was against the idea of force. They charged the Czar with using force, to the total exclusion of everything else, and they were determined to work out a settlement without the aid of the iron hand."

"Kerensky tried by persuasion and speeches to win over the people, but it got to a point where everyone had a hand in the Government and there was no leadership. His attitude gained for him the title 'Chief Persuader,' and this became a joke among the people."

"The Bolsheviks has yet less chance to remain in power than Kerensky. While Kerensky only wrongly understood and spoke about Russia's economical problems, the Bolsheviks are trying to put these wrong principles into effect. Chief among these are the principles of Socialism. Russia is not ready for this. It is economically undeveloped, and far behind other countries. The salvation of Russia lies in developing the natural resources."

Russia at Most Critical Stage.

"Russia now is at the most critical period of the war. Germany is fighting this war with one intention, and that is to get new economical markets for her products. It would be the greatest mistake possible if the allies were to follow the recent advice of an English political leader and leave Russia to manage her own affairs."

Germany will achieve her greatest victory if the allies abandon Russia now. Germany will gain control of all Russian markets, the vast raw materials and the purchasing power of 180,000,000 people. Russia is helpless without outside aid, and it is inevitable that she will make some sort of peace, unless the allies assist her. In aiding Russia now you will not be helping the Bolsheviks, but the Russian people. Your President has said he will deal with the German people. He should therefore aid the Russian people, who are not responsible for the Bolsheviks. "A stable government will have been set up in Russia inside of six months. If the allies help Russia now I think she will in time be able to join in the successful prosecution of the war."

Are You Ready

Your 1917 Income and Profit Taxes Are Due and Payable to the United States Government on June 15, 1918.

IF in the operation of your business during the first five and a half months of 1918 you should lose the profits you made in 1917, you will pay your taxes due the Government out of your capital.

GET BUSY NOW. DO MORE BUSINESS AND THEN MORE BUSINESS. MAKE MORE PROFITS AND MORE PROFITS EACH MONTH..

The President of the United States took over the railroads not only to assure the stockholders the safety of their investments and the income thereon, but for the great big broad purpose of making it possible that the railroads be operated in such a way that no legitimate business be hampered for lack of transportation, either over the railroads themselves; or over waterways and highways as adjuncts.

The railroads under the direction of the United States Government must be so efficiently operated as to eliminate embargoes and priorities affecting business.

The United States must assist in winning this War. WAR IS OUR BUSINESS NOW AND BUSINESS IS OUR CHIEF WEAPON.

No legitimate business is a non-essential if it can make money because money is the most important munition of War.

Business must make more money this year than last year. The Government is going to need more money and still more money until this War has been won.

For ten years we have manufactured and sold motor trucks. During 1917 we sold more Autocars than in any previous year---this year we are going to manufacture and sell even more. Our business has steadily increased because Autocars have been profitable to the 6,000 American business houses that use them.

If you are interested in any concern that needs additional motor truck equipment to enable it to earn more money; in order to pay taxes out of profits instead of principal; you should investigate the merits of

GREATEST SPEECH WILSON HAS MADE, VIEW OF BALFOUR

"Never Did a Nation Have Its Cause Put More Clearly or on Broader Lines."

WAR AIMS ARE INDORSED

"Day America Entered Conflict One of Most Important in Annals of Mankind."

LONDON, Jan. 11 (By A. P.).—Arthur J. Balfour, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in a speech at Edinburgh last night said:

"The United States now has for the first time in its history entered the great struggle for civilization against barbarism, of freedom against tyranny. I do not think that these new views on cooperation in the new world could have been introduced in a nobler manner than they have been introduced in the public pronouncements of President Wilson. 'Yesterday's I think was the greatest he has made. Never did a great nation have its cause put more clearly, more eloquently or on broader lines, and if the spirit which has animated his public statement is the key to future American policy we may truly say that we have as guardians of the future and of the great cause at stake in this war perhaps the greatest and most powerful of these communities which modern development has brought to the front to lead in the progress of humanity.'"

"All Previously Stated." "I think that the day America entered the war was one of the most important in the annals of mankind. But it must be remembered that the pronouncements of Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson contain nothing that was not implicitly stated in the utterances of other statesmen, including the late Premier. 'The spirit that has animated Britain and her allies has undergone no profound modification. We did not enter the war for selfish motives and we are not going to fight to the finish for selfish motives. I can see little improvement in the attitude of the Central Powers except that they now admit that it might be better for mankind if in the future wars were averted. That shows some improvement in the moral tone of the Germans, but so far as I can understand German pronouncements they have not begun to understand the moral horror which their procedure has instilled even into the most recalcitrant students of German methods and aims. 'As to Belgium, Germany has unhesitatingly and absolutely rejected that she should do something to reconstitute what she, against all international morality, has utterly destroyed. A League of Nations. 'With a Power like Germany lacking morality, none of the objects mentioned by the Premier and President Wilson can be realized. I am not going to discuss whether a league of nations has reached the stage of being a practical idea. While I recognize the difficulties, it would be mean and cowardly to shrink from them. I hope the world at large will take that great problem in hand and see it through. 'If we are going to have a league of nations in order to render international relations stable and secure, peace we must have international relations based on a stable foundation. Only this would make the league effective. 'If a German peace were made we should have all over Europe centers from which morbid effects would flow—France with the great wrong of Alsace-Lorraine unredeemed; Poland and Silesia in German hands; Italian unity imperiled. 'A German peace would not leave the world as the war found it, but far worse. All the horror we have suffered would not be equal to the horror that would fall upon us, our children and our grandchildren, if the war should end with a German peace."

DIES FROM BLOW YEAR AGO Edward Demaske Hit Trying to Stop Fight at Little Rock, Ark.

Edward Demaske, 45 years old, died yesterday at the home of his father-in-law, F. C. Pauley, 939 Maple place, as the result of a blow received a year ago while trying to separate two clerks who were fighting in his store at Little Rock, Ark. The blow, aimed by one of the clerks at the other, struck Demaske above the heart and caused a bruise which developed into cancer. He gave up his business and returned to St. Louis four months ago. He was formerly a member of a hat firm in St. Louis. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

SOLDAN TEACHER HONORED BY FRENCH CABINET OF FINE ARTS

Miss Cornelia Brossard of Kirkwood Says Election Is Equivalent to Conferring Honorary Degree.

Miss Cornelia Brossard of Kirkwood, teacher of French at Soldan High School, today said she had been notified of her election to the Cabinet of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, of France. The election, she said, is the equivalent of receiving, in this country, an honorary college degree, with the added distinction that the honor is seldom conferred outside of France.

Miss Brossard has done considerable war work. She holds a master's and a bachelor's degree in French, and is within a few points of a doctor's degree. She gave French lessons three nights a week to the last nurses who departed from Barnes Hospital to join Hospital Unit No.

21. She also has translated a number of technical treatises on surgery, containing information gathered in military hospitals, for American surgeons.

The decoration accompanying the parchment of notification consists of a gold wreath, half laurel and half palm, suspended from a purple ribbon. It was given to her Monday by Marc Sequin, French Consul here.

To the General Public, Retailer and Consumer:

The purpose of this advertisement is to advise that the TROCO now being sold at A CUT PRICE IN ST. LOUIS is out of a carload which was delayed so long in transit that upon arrival in St. Louis, it was rejected by us, because in our opinion it is NOT GOOD ENOUGH to distribute to the people of St. Louis and vicinity. This car was then sold by the Railroad Company delivering the car at a sacrifice price. Because the contents of this car were not in accordance with our advertised standard, we refused to distribute the TROCO in this car. It is due both to ourselves as the manufacturers and to the local distributors of this product as well as to the general public that this statement be published.

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN

A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to creak a little at the hinges.

Motion is more slow and deliberate.

Not so young as I used to be? It is a frequent and unwelcome thought.

Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL

Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to adverse conditions. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dram of pure oil. Take them just before you would take a pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gallstones, gravel, "brick-dust," etc.

They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

Go to your drugist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil

Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. These are GOLD MEDAL capsules, the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil. Capsules. Accept no substitutes.—ADV.

COSTS .022 TO MAKE

PILLS SELLING AT 25C

Statement of Head of Concern in Promotion of Sale of Stock.

Liver pills, for which pill consumers pay 25 cents a box cost to manufacture 26 cents per dozen boxes, according to a statement of W. H. Lamont, president of the Salux Drug Co., Seventeenth and Morgan streets, circulated by J. T. Claiborne & Co., investment brokers, Times Building to promote the sale of Salux Drug Co. stock.

The statement sets forth the profit in not only liver pills but other remedies manufactured by the company. Under the head of Profit in Medicine, the circular says: "In our list of over 300 items we have a number of ready or every-day sellers—goods that are in demand because of their general use, or because they relieve abnormal conditions found more frequently than others in the human body."

"Confidential Profits." It then submits "a few confidential profits" as follows:

Salux Liver Tonic.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Liver Pills.....Sells for 25c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.75.
Salux Family Laxative.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Kidney Pills.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Catarrh Pills.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Liquid Headache Remedy.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Druggists Tablets.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.
Salux Hair Tonic.....Sells for 50c
Costs to manufacture, per dozen, $1.40.

The capitalization of the company is $1,500,000. Its selling plan is to send a salesman with an automobile to work in succession the territory surrounding 16 towns, displaying on the sides of the machine in each town the name of a local druggist.

Overhead and Selling Cost. Lamont told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the profits set out in the circular were about the same as were made on all proprietary medicines, but the statement of the manufacturing cost did not include overhead, advertising, selling cost and other items of expense. The selling plan was peculiar to the Salux company, he said, and had been developed in recognition of the fact that 75 per cent of patent medicines are bought by country people.

He said that all liver pills cost about the same amount to manufacture and that in selling them at 25 cents a box his company was simply following the price precedent set by other pill-makers. He deprecated publicity on the ground that pill purchasers might think that there was not merit in pills which cost them 25 cents a box and which cost the manufacturers, say, 40 cents a dozen boxes.

January Clearing Sale

At Famous-Barr Co.—Twice-a-Year Reductions!

You must appreciate this sale in the light of present conditions. You must consider that the world's wool consumption is proceeding at a rate hitherto undreamed of—far in excess of production; that enormous quantities of wool are being diverted from civilian to military channels; that it is costing ever more and more to produce a wool garment. You must REALIZE that conditions ARE extraordinary, that all this talk about stringencies of material and men is NOT MERE TALK, but hard fact. And when this store comes forward with such values as these, values as substantial and as tangible as the clothes themselves, men who are alert to their own true interests MUST respond. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Water Power as Coal Substitute.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now that the Government and people are up against a fuel famine, I want to ask: Why does not the Government utilize the great water powers of this country to manufacture heat, light and power, and sell it to the people at 10 per cent above cost? Government ownership of this public utility is just as necessary to the success of this war as Government ownership of railroads, because every one of the 90,000,000 people of this country need heat, light or power, and millions are being deprived of it, thousands dying from exposure for lack of it, and even important Government work, vital to the success of this war and safety of our country, is delayed for lack of it.

Such an investment would not only help to win the war, but would bring hundreds of millions of dollars into the U. S. treasury and save thousands of lives annually. A branch could be established in every town in the country and every home made comfortable, and housework, factory work and every other kind of work could be done quicker and better, with cheap heat, light and power.

It would also save millions of dollars annually to property owners, whose property is now destroyed by smoke and fuel dirt. I should think every property owner would want such a law. We must have it some day in the near future, and it certainly looks like a fuel famine in time of world war would make the Government realize the necessity of cheap heat, light and power now for the Government and country. Our lives may depend on it, as we do not know what is in store for us or how long the present fuel deposits will last. Efficiency is Germany's watchword; it should be ours. B. W. W.

The Red Cross Success.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Red Cross Christmas membership campaign was a great success—another victory for St. Louis!—for we have now enrolled over 230,000 Christmas members. This would have been impossible without the active and hearty co-operation of the press, and for the help of the Post-Dispatch, the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Chapter wishes to express to you its deepest thanks and gratitude.

MRS. FRANK V. HAMMAR.

Chairman St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross.

Taft on Senator Reed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Ex-President Taft's caustic rebuke of your Senator Reed, which appeared in your columns, should be read by every Missourian, for Missouri is responsible for the Senator. This Senator, who is supposed to be a lawyer, should feel the sting of a judicial rebuke by one of Judge Taft's standing with the bar. There is not a chicken thief in Missouri who is not permitted by a Justice of the Peace to cross-examine his accuser and present his defense. Mr. Taft does not mention the fact that Senator Reed, before Hoover was permitted to speak, claimed in printed interviews that his attitude towards Hoover was vindicated. President Wilson's estimate of your Senator is shown by his directing the publication of Hoover's statement after Senator Reed's committee refused to receive it, and your editorials with those of the leading papers of the country, have thoroughly uncovered the farce.

How is it possible for men in representative positions to mislead the masses and the people so completely? Vandingham and his ilk of the Civil War had no precedent to guide and save them from their folly. But these modern Vandinghams have their predecessors' careers before them, and they should profit by it. They should remember that in the future they will be completely forgotten by the great majority, and will be remembered only by the few who will investigate and be astonished at their folly.

I have always been a Republican, but I hope in this great crisis all partisanship has been laid aside. I take off my hat to President Wilson. He has said so eloquently and so frequently what all patriots think, that it is only necessary to quote his suggestion as to the small politicians who, like the Senator so unmercifully flayed by Mr. Taft, lack the honest common sense that would keep them quiet at least when facing the gravity of a nation aroused to righteous wrath: Let them "strut their uneasy hour and be forgotten." H. CLAY HORNER, Chester, Ill.

STATE'S RIGHTS VANISH.

The Post-Dispatch does not favor the policy of establishing woman's suffrage by constitutional amendment, because we believe that control of the suffrage under the Constitution and by right belongs to the separate states, but we cannot understand the reluctance of Congress to pass the equal suffrage amendment, in view of its joyous approval of the prohibition amendment.

President Wilson's recantation of his opposition to the constitutional method of establishing equal suffrage and his advice that Congressmen support it, pulled the amendment through the House by a margin of one vote. Despite his silence and presumed opposition to the prohibition amendment, the measure went through both houses with a whoop.

The last remnant of state's rights vanished when the constitutional prohibition amendment was adopted. It proposed not only an invasion of state's rights, but the abolition of local self-government in regulating personal conduct and a deadly blow at individual liberty.

On the other hand, the suffrage amendment proposes the recognition and extension of human rights. It acknowledges and extends to women a privilege which, in a democracy based upon liberty and justice, belongs as clearly to them as to men. Beyond their fundamental right to equality with men, in governmental control they have earned the privilege of participation in government by character, intelligence and unmeasured service.

The prohibition amendment put away state's rights, personal liberty and local self-government with Jeffersonian democracy in a steel-lined vault in the American political cemetery. It set up centralized government by bureaucracy.

When men who voted for nation-wide constitutional prohibition protest against encroachments on state and local government and personal liberty by centralized national government in the name of these fundamental American principles, it is to laugh—"there ain't no such thing."

The approval by three-fourths of the states of these amendments will mark the final accomplishment of a revolution which will cast all state's rights into the junk pile.

A drafted man sent from St. Louis to Camp Funston has gained 44 pounds in three months, proving conclusively that the food there is poor and inadequate.

SOME NARROW EAST ST. LOUISANS.

They tell a story about an East St. Louis man who died and got to heaven and raised an awful row because he found some St. Louisans there and a few from Belleville and Alton and other East Side towns. He was one of the class of East St. Louisans who think that East St. Louis is the only place on earth. There are not many of them, but they make such a clatter standing up for East St. Louis that they delude themselves into believing that they are East St. Louis.

They caused astonishment the other day by protesting against the removal of the bridge arbitrary on coal, because, although it would not affect the East St. Louis rate, it would correct an injustice to St. Louis.

Just now they are trying to deprive Alton and other East Side towns of limited car service for no other reason than that it is an accommodation to residents of those towns in which East St. Louisans do not share. Belleville has been asking for limited service for years, and the East St. Louis & Suburban Electric Railway Co. is willing to give it, but East St. Louisans who stand up for East St. Louis and against their neighbors will not permit it.

The company is trying to give other towns limited service, but some East St. Louisans board the limited cars in preference to their own cars, smash the windows, pull the trolley off, tie up traffic and delay the homeward trips of their neighbors in the nearby towns.

The Illinois Traction Co. used to run cars through East St. Louis, but now it operates all of its trains over the McKinley bridge. The East St. Louis & Suburban operates some of its trains over the same bridge and may find it advantageous to use that route more freely.

There are 300,000 drug users in New York, according to Government figures. How many drunks would there be there under forced prohibition?

NIAGARA, KEOKUK AND UNCLE SAM.

Following the Post-Dispatch suggestion that the Government take over the hydro-electric plants at Keokuk, a bill has been introduced in Congress for the Federal operation of the power plants at Niagara Falls as a war measure. The purpose is to increase the capacity of the Niagara plants and the bill presented by Congressman Waldo of New York grants an appropriation of $20,000,000.

Under the international agreement for the diversion of Niagara waters, the installation on the American side of the river is now reported to be producing about 235,000 horsepower a day. As more than 400,000 is produced on the Canadian side, increase in the capacity of the American plants has long been urged. Government control is now proposed as a means to the speediest possible enlargement of the works to serve war emergency needs.

But it is not possible to obtain at Niagara results as quick, as important and at as low a cost as at Keokuk. The 15 turbines now operated at the Mississippi installation have a theoretical capacity of 10,000 horsepower a day each, but the manager at the dam says they can actually produce a total of 167,000 horsepower, or more than 11,000 each. Places in the dam are ready for 15 more turbines and only the installation of the big wheels is necessary to double the capacity.

With adequate transmission lines more than 50,000 horsepower now unused because customers and facilities for getting it to market are lacking can be made available and with 15 more water wheels a total of more than 217,000 horsepower can be supplied as a substitute for tens of thousands of tons of coal, the intensive use of thousands of freight cars and the labor of an army of miners.

Where else can Government aid insure so great a measure of public relief at so cheap a cost?

BIG PREPARATORY WORK.

Secretary Baker's statement to the Senate Military Committee, supplemented by the first annual report of the Council of National Defense, throws light upon the tremendous actual accomplishments of the country in preparation for war.

Mistakes have been made, as the Secretary admits, some of them avoidable, some unavoidable, but practically all remediable. It is only when we look at the thing as a whole, however, that we can understand the categorical declaration that we now have 1,500,000 men under arms, that no army of similar size in the history of the world has ever been raised, equipped and trained so quickly and that there will be adequate arms for every soldier we can send to France in 1918.

It has been salutary, of course, to point the errors out and to expose sloth and red tape when they could be found. But when it is remembered that in less than a year we have been transformed from a peaceful and unprepared people to a nation in arms, it is easy to understand that blunders could scarcely be avoided. Much of the blundering can be charged off to the speed with which the change has been effected.

The task of the National Defense Council has been so gigantic that it is hard to understand it in all its immensity. Through more than 100 separate committees it has linked to the Federal Government every industry that could be used in winning the war. A mere catalogue of what it has done is impressive, running from the production of the liberty motor, the building of cantonments, the control of food and transportation systems down to the labors of the subcommittee on fertilizers.

The bringing of all these facts to public attention is in itself a commendable achievement. Most of us have felt all along that there was little reason for discontent and discouragement, that big things were being done in a big way. It is comforting to know that we were not mistaken.

DISTINCTIONS IN SERVICE.

We agree with Senator Stone that men not entitled to wear military uniforms should not be permitted to wear them. They should be punished for wearing them.

On the other hand, we do not agree that there should be any invidious distinction between men actually in different branches of the service. The man who enlists for service and is assigned to a nonfighting branch on account of special fitness or disability which debars him from actual fighting, is entitled to honor and full credit for his service to his country.

After all, is there any reason for the point raised by Senator Stone except with reference to the frauds? The uniforms of the army and navy have distinguishing insignia which indicate the branches of the service in which the wearer is engaged. Some men are at one time in the fighting forces and at another in the nonfighting service. There is no danger that men who fight will be deprived of the distinction or that the men who do not fight will receive more honor than they are entitled to for serving the country in other capacities.

Perhaps if Senator Stone would make acquaintance with the insignia of ranks and branches of service in the army and navy he would cease from worry.

SCHEIDEMANN'S QUIBBLING.

On the face of things, Philip Scheidemann's report to Lloyd George's proposal for a peace based upon national self-determination sounds convincing. He says, in effect, that the physician should cure himself and that England's good faith would be proven if the British empire were first to grant independence to India, Ireland and Egypt, before asking independence for Poland and other vassal countries.

The suggestion is a fine bit of literary polemic. Like many other forensic propositions, however, it depends upon half truths. It overlooks the fact that in all practical senses India and Egypt are separate entities in a Federal Government scheme; that their welfare is furthered rather than hindered by the empire; that the war has actually proved their fundamental loyalty to the imperial crown, and their assent to the existing order of things. It also overlooks the vitally important fact that Ireland today has a fair representation in the British Parliament and that the chief reason why it does not enjoy a greater measure of local self-government is that Irishmen themselves cannot agree upon what they want or how they are going to get it.

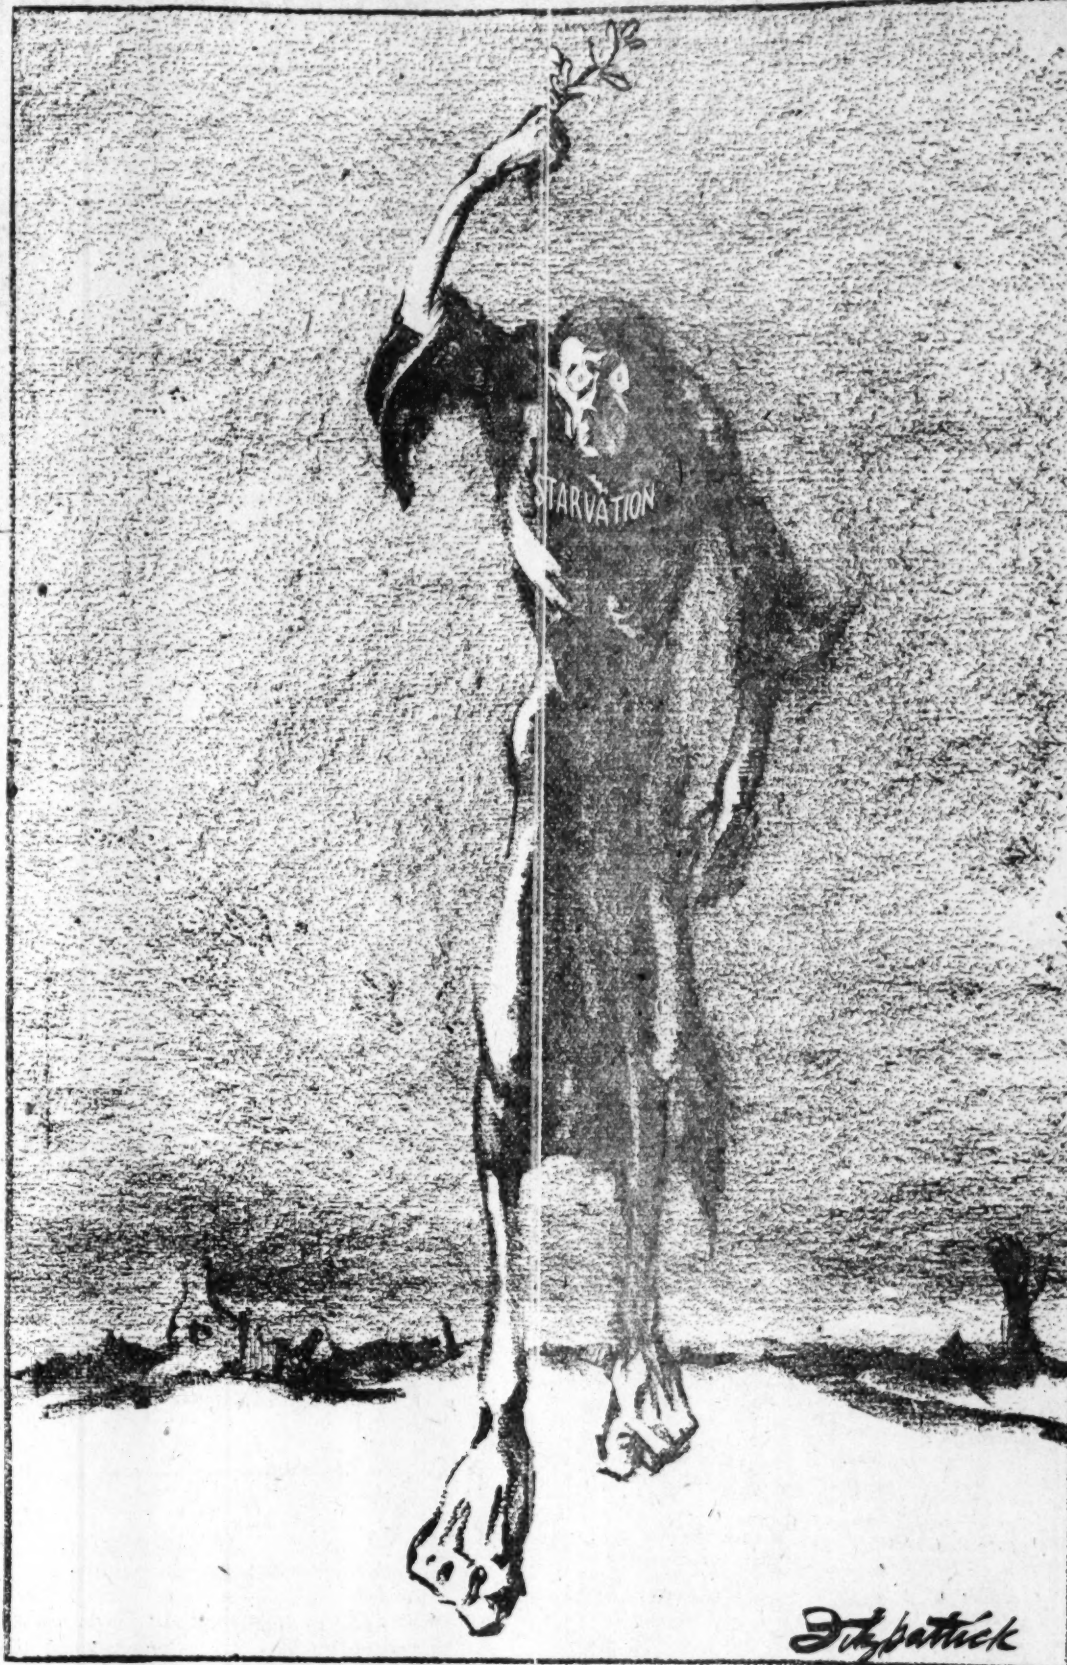

No true student of affairs can believe otherwise than that in the great readjustment of things after this war many wrongs are to be set right and many grievances are to be assuaged. The next few decades undoubtedly will see many centralized governments resolved into federalized ones. The right of localities to have their interests considered as primary and essential rather than as secondary to conflicting interests of empire makers is bound to be established.

The same day that the Kaiser told the Poles he was the champion of humanity's submarine torpedoed a hospital ship full of wounded and dying soldiers.

TEN YEARS FOR RAY CUMMINS.

The conviction of Ray H. Cummins, ex-policeman, on a charge of burglary brings to a fitting end a long record of discredit in the department. How a man of his principles came to be selected as secretary of the relief fund and as the principal representative of the department in urging a salary increase on the Legislature is now less important than that no opportunity shall be permitted for the survival of any deplorable influence he may have exerted on associates while occupying positions of trust on the force.

The testimony at his trial showing felonious dealings while a policeman with the criminal underworld affords new light in which to judge the quality of suspicious transactions for pushing the salary grab, transactions for which he had previously been placed under indictment. The proof in his conviction, that while unworthy men may unfortunately gain favor in the department, wrongdoing is afforded no higher-up protection, is gratifying to the community.

THE PEACE MAKER.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McAdams

AT LAST.

IT was all over.

The Kaiser had finally conquered the world.

He had put France to the sword.

He had reduced the Russians to slavery.

He had knocked the props from under the British empire, and it littered a world.

The British Isles he had given to Ireland.

He had made Belgium the man with the hoe.

South America he had handed to the faithful Germans of Brazil.

The Baghdad railway was building on to India.

German colonists were pouring into the conquered provinces of Canada.

The Balkans were a deer park.

The Panama Canal—Mexico—Central America—they were all his.

The Adriatic was where he went sailing.

The Australians were his sheep herders.

Portugal was his wine cellar.

The United States he had ravaged with the torch.

The Aegean was his aquarium.

His was the gold of Alaska.

Scandinavia was his icebox.

New York was Wilhelmstadt.

Greece he had his boots for him.

He had Roosevelt's skull with the print of an iron boot heel in it, preserved in a glass case in his private museum.

The Japanese were mining coal for the Kaiser in China.

Africa he had given to the Hagenbacks.

There was one flag—one county—one King—and the seven seas were his duck puddle.

It took 50 years to prepare for it, and 15 years to do it—but, behold it was done!

The Kaiser had made good!

Alexander the Great had been only a piker.

Caesar—was there a man named Caesar?

Attila had caused the death of 5,000,000 people—the Kaiser 50,000,000!

Never before had the world known what power was.

Never before had it seen blood run.

The past? Bah!

The future? Two bahs!

Gott had been lukewarm—damn Gott! He had not been necessary.

DEUTSCHLAND UBER ALLES!

And a damn fool pacifist, speaking from a cistern where Topeka had stood, said: "I was mistaken!"

Just as too much radicalism is to be its own undoing in Russia, so too much pacifism must be the end of pacifism there. The Russians will get mad after while, and when they do the war news coming out of that country will read like some of the celebrated passages from the Book of Samuel.

Judging by the way our own Congress and the British House of Lords are voting for woman suffrage, men are thinking of retiring from the management of the world. They have made a nice mess of it.

Why not give Mr. Hoover a Readless day?

THE TURBID SCUT.

IT was "somewhere in France." The two occupied a cramped lookout post, dark and floored with a layer of muck. The one in kilts has just made a hurried entrance from above, urged by the peevish thrilling of machine guns and the din of bursting shrapnel close by. He lay sprawled half in the muck, too tired to try for a dryer spot. The other cast a glance his way and asked:

"Weary, comrade?"

"Na," replied he of the bare legs in a voice rancorous from the damp and the yelling of the charge.

"Na, the belchin' o' fire he yakkins' fur the skin o' a scut. Ner a head split out frae its settin'. Na, ner a hair 'ud ut turn 'o' a scut!"

"Ner an arm shot free o' it's moorin's 'ud gie him a quirk neath his breaks. Na, er an e' planned smart 'pon a bay'net 'ud turn his vittles out."

"Na. A scut, mind 'e, Sandee, a Scut can sup out a deid mun's cup when the flinners be stiff wi' the grippin' o' death. A-a-i! Danged ef he cudna, eh?"

"I tell 'e, comerd, the diel he fellow wi' the Scuts, and Hell's a wee bit firsider to the Scuts. They be diels, I tell 'e, comerd. Gawd, ef they be not diels, how 'ud they mind the lea wind o'er the land wi' the cauld creepin' the marrows? Gawd, I say, how?"

"Take a Scut. Set him hell'ards and 'es makin' fer hame wi' a wee bottle o' frog and the e'e o' a diel! But lead him afar, comerd, oot o' his land, and Gawd! 'es longin' fer thistles 'pon words. 'Es lone, 'e is, beggarly lone, 'e is. Then show 'im a wee bit o' hither—'es done! 'E'll swallow the hell and crumple doom. 'Es done! Gawd! 'es done!"

PATIENCE WORTH.

One gets a new impression of the Kaiser from things written about internal politics in Germany. Apparently he has not been half so busy rushing from one military front to another as he has been getting around to the various fronts of public opinion. We are told that he fairly wore a groove between the submarine and the anti-submarine camps last winter before that issue was decided. He is in politics, too, as in everything else, all things to all fronts. Some royal runabout, that fellow.

The Congressional investigating committee don't seem to care to have Secretary Daniels paged quite as hard as it seemed they might a little while back.

The coldest block in St. Louis is that on Delmar between Goodfellow and Hamilton. On the south side, where there is an outdoor-picture theater, one sees through snow and ice this:

Missouri Airdrome

The Place With a Breeze

On the north side, where there is a large picture of an excursion boat, one is chilled to the bone to read:

It's Cool on the River.

We'll say it.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE POSTOFFICE AND THE PEOPLE

CHARLES JOHNSON POST, in the Public Opinion. The National Government principle of the Postoffice Department is analogous to that of a Highway Department—an intellectual and educational highway—that it should first give the most widespread means of communication to the people. It has delivered letters in Alaska for 2 cents that cost $1 on a 1200-mile sledge haul with a dog team, and it has been by such means that Alaska has developed. Who would deny the soundness of that theory or condemn its practice?

Communication, contact, the spread and communication of ideas and progress; these are the things that make for civilization, unity, citizenship, patriotism and progress. They are a special one to no one man—they are benefits whose cost and upkeep our social organization should pay. For our social organization as a whole is benefited. It is the reader, it is the citizen, his wife and children and his community, who are the direct and great beneficiaries of social progress, whether it be through cheap and secure periodicals, or through easy transportation systems and the abolition of penalties on educational intercourse. And this 50 to 900 per cent periodical postage increase means less reading for our country. If paper, ink, printing and postage were as cheap as they are today, our civilization would be a thousand years in advance of its present standard. The benefits of the invention of the printing press went to society, not to the inventor. The benefits of periodical circulation go to the readers and only incidentally to the publishers.

It is the reading public that receives the benefit of cheap postage and not the printers and publishers. Transportation cost, be it high or low, is paid by the consumer and not by the producer. This whole question of periodical postage involves the same principles as the old railroad arguments. Today we know that highways are of the utmost importance to the welfare of the country. Yet, there were people who, when the abolition of toll roads was proposed, clamored that free highways were merely a benefit to vehicle owners only. And that the man who walked would have to pay the burden of the upkeep for those who traveled on wheels. What an absurdity! Yet, it is not more absurd than the present-day claims to which Mr. Burleson lends himself, that easy dissemination of reading matter is a subsidy to publishers, that should be exterminated, as he candidly suggests, by freight rates, if it cannot survive in the face of the 50 to 900 per cent periodical postage raise.

The Fashion to Work.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

NOT since pioneer days, perhaps, have there been so large a proportion of the American people at work as at the present time. As one observer has said, "it is the fashion to work." That phrase it exactly. It is unfashionable to be a slacker, as well as unpatriotic. The idea of youth or adult, once perhaps, was that their supposedly less fortunate fellows who "had to work" is no longer admired or pitied or despised. Even the women have come out from their sheltered homes and are bravely doing their part in countless lines of service. America has never had a caste of idlers, such as spring from the aristocracies of Europe. We have prided ourselves on our being a nation of workers. But we have been working for our own ambitions, our self-centered ends. It took the great war to show that work may have a higher, a nobler purpose, that we should all work as a national duty, as factors in the common development and welfare. We are coming, under the inspiration of patriotic necessity, to ask ourselves not "if" we work, but "how" we work. We are vowing in that light, ceases to be a burden and becomes a service.

The Middleaged Man.

From the New York Mail.

THE theory that a man is fit only for the scrap heap after he is 50 has been thoroughly discredited by experience in the present war. Military operations more than any other form of activity, demand youth and the impetuous energy, enterprise and aggressiveness that have been supposed to go only with youth. In this war these qualities, indispensable in the moral makeup of any military leader, have been found mostly in men well past the 50-year line. And yet there are employees who think that at 45 a man begins to lose his "punch," his capacity for aggressive enterprise, his value as a part of the human machinery of a business enterprise. Never was a more serious economic mistake made. The man of 50 who has lived wisely and has kept in touch with the spirit of the time is at his best. To bodily vigor he joins experience and experience means good judgment. To judgment he joins a sense of responsibility and a habit of steadiness—two qualities of estimable value in business.

The cartoon is a political cartoon showing a man in a military uniform, labeled 'STARVATION' on his chest, standing in a desolate, war-torn landscape. He is holding a large, dark, irregular shape that resembles a map of Europe. The background shows a dark, stormy sky and a body of water. The cartoon is signed 'J. P. Fred Fulton, the Minnesota Plasterer, Smeared It All Over "Texas" Tate

Fulton Proves That He Is Real Contender for Honors Now Held by Jess Willard

Minnesota Plasterer Wipes Out Stigma of Defeat by "Texas" Tate, by Stopping McCarny's "Hope" With Powerful Lefts in Second of Scheduled 12-Round Bout.

By John E. Wray.

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 11.—The pugilistic star of Harry "Texas" Tate, which flashed into unexpected effulgence last Christmas day, as suddenly went out here last night, extinguished by the all-powerful left of Fred Fulton, heavyweight champion claimant.

Halfway through the second period of the scheduled 12-round bout with Tate gnashing on the floor, stretched prone by powerful left-hand smashes of the giant Minnesota, Billy McCarny tossed a towel in the ring, a token that he surrendered all hope for his man. Headless of the towel, Referee Tommy Sullivan continued his count over the prostrate fighter until the final swing of his arm reached the key of number ten.

Tate at no time during the five minutes of actual fighting had the semblance of a chance, nor did he give any indication of the merit claimed for him in his previous meeting with Willard's nemesis.

Outclassed in height by three inches, in weight by 20 pounds and in boxing skill by many points, he was putty in the hands of the cool and deliberate giant, Fulton.

Tate Is Totally Outclassed.

When the men stepped to the center of the ring the discrepancy in size was apparent, but it wasn't a mark to the discrepancy in fighting ability that developed before many seconds had elapsed. At the sound of the starting gong, Fulton flounced lazily to the center of the ring.

Collins States That He Will Go to Chicago to Accept Willard's Terms

FULTON came out more earnestly in the second round and it was apparent he meant to end it quickly. He immediately started to drive lefts into Tate's face. The Texan made a few wild rushes, but each time was straightened by that terrible power which struck him like a pole ax and as unerringly as a rifle shot. Having dashed his man equally on the forehead, the deliberate and workmanlike Fulton decided that it was time to crown his own day.

Unleashed an over-hand right that was headed for Tate's jaw. Tate shifted slightly so that the pile driving blow hit him squarely on the crown of the head. Slowly his legs gave away beneath him and he sank to the floor.

Before his dazed faculties could clear, Fulton had lashed out with his left and with no apparent effort put into it, it struck Tate on the jaw and sent him down in collapse. This time he took the full count, coming up weakly to go into a clinch.

The powerful arm of Fulton unwrapped the desperate grip of his opponent and, coldly measuring his opponent, the little cash prize was awarded a hard left hook to his opponent's body. The blow did not appear to carry any unusual weight. It struck Tate in the right side just above the short ribs and hurled him to the floor, where he turned slowly over on his side. Referee Tommy Sullivan pushed Fulton aside and began the count. At three, the towel came winging into the ring, but Sullivan went on with the toll, taking no chance that some unauthorized person might have tossed in the true signal.

Tate Had No Chance.

The fight told plainly that the Little Rock fiasco in which Tate was supposed to have had the better of Fulton while the go lasted, was misrepresented. Tate last night had no more chance with Fulton than Jack Jackson who went three rounds with

Simon and Farrar Bowlers to Form Company to Boost City Angle Title

Rex and Arata Entries in City League Have Retained Clean Slates Thus Far.

Present indications are that the city three-cushion title will be decided between Johnny Simon of the Rex and Elmer Farrar of Arata's. Farrar last night won his third straight game by defeating Thomas Sperry of the Maryland, 10 to 47, although it required 110 innings to accomplish it.

The result put Farrar in a tie for first place with Simon. Each has won all of his three games. The match last night netted $50.45 for the Billiard Players' Ambulance Fund.

One of the best games of the tournament thus far should result to-night at the Rex, when Johnny Simon played Allen of the Grand. Arata won two of his three games and if he can defeat Simon tonight, it will put Farrar in the lead.

Simon, Rex 100-0
Farrar, Arata's 100-0
Sperry, Maryland 47-110
Hunt, City 100-0
W. E. L. 100-0

PAULETTE ACCEPTS TERMS AND SIGNS FOR NEXT SEASON

First Sacker Is Third Member of Cardinals Under Contract for 1918.

Lawler Gets Position With Red Sox; Local Clubs Need Trainers

BOTH local baseball clubs are without a trainer. Martin ("Pike") Lawler, for many years chief masseur at the Cardinals, yesterday accepted a position with the Red Sox according to a report from Boston, thus leaving the local club in the same position as the Cardinals.

Bob Quinn has not yet returned to the city, consequently no information as to what position he has obtained.

Tommy Brammell, an expert in training matters, is an applicant for the position with the Cardinals and it is said he has better than an even chance of landing it.

Brannell's candidacy is looked upon with favor because he is a strict St. Louis product and fits in with the Cardinal Ideal.

Gene Paulette, Cardinal first sacker, has signed a contract with the local club for the coming season, according to an announcement from President Branch Rickey this morning.

Paulette is known as a reliable live third member of Hendricks' club to attach his signature to a document for next season.

Oscar Horstman, pitcher, who signed for two years, and Bob Wallace are the other two.

In making the announcement about Paulette, Rickey emphasized the point that he had not sent out any contracts for the coming season, but that he had signed up the three players.

Manager Hendricks stated this morning that he was much pleased at Paulette's decision.

Breakers Ahead.

Rickey, of course, has not tackled the biggest jobs ahead of him in the matter of signing players. These are getting Rogers Hornsby to come through and sign, and the influence of Frank Snyder. After these tasks are completed, Rickey will feel more at ease, although the cardinal executive has consistently maintained that he will reach an agreement with the two players at the proper time.

Smith, the Elmer, is a about the city, but hasn't conferred with Rickey recently concerning his contract.

Rickey says there is a difference of opinion concerning salary and Rickey admits it's true. However, Smith cannot be classed as a holdout, for the simple reason that no contract has been tendered him.

Jack Ophus has worked with the Cardinals last season, and he is now more than ready to sign.

That's a matter for debate between himself and Rickey, but the youngster unquestionably has a strong claim to be considered a broad-minded enough to know it.

Manager Hendricks has established temporary quarters at the Planters Hotel. His wife and family will come here early next week and then Jack will be a full-fledged citizen of St. Louis.

Hendricks Wants Utility Man.

Hendricks stated yesterday that the Cardinals were in the market for a good utility player. "I want a man," said Jack, "who can play any position, who can catch, who can play just a little better than the regular on the job. I am a firm believer in the old saying that a ball club is no better than its substitutes."

Rickey added Hendricks buckled down to the task of establishing their position in the market for a utility player.

The president and his manager held a protracted conference. Nothing of news developed, however.

Eppa Rixey Enlists.

These are certainly unfortunate days for Patrick Moran, the genial leader of the Phillies. After the loss of Alexander, along comes Eppa Rixey, who is a ball-tackler and enlists in the Sanitary Corps of the National Army. He has been given a First Lieutenant's commission and probably will be assigned to the gas defense section.

Menoskey Drafted.

Clark Griffith has lost his first player. Mike Menoskey, outfielder, who recently was drawn and has been sent to Camp Curtis. Menoskey was born in Austria and his father still is a subject of that country.

How About This?

Chicago says Earl Hamilton, former Browns pitcher, is set for a comeback next season, merely because Joe Tinker has sold him to the Pirates. Hamilton went to the Columbus club as part payment on a Lowdermilk. The news that Tinker has sold him is just beginning to leak out and hasn't been confirmed.

The Athletics and Pirates will train at Jacksonville, Fla., and play a series of exhibition games, according to an announcement yesterday from Connie Mack.

Bill James, who used to hurl for the Browns, but more recently with the Detroit club, has waived all exemption claims, according to his questionnaire, which he recently returned. Probably means Bill won't pitch many games next season.

Joe Jenkins, White Sox catcher, who was drafted early in the fall, is having fully as much success as he has had in the past. He has been chosen to attend the officers' training camp at Atlanta, Ga.

SOLDAN HIGH FIVE UPSETS DOPE AND WINS FIRST GAME

Gold and Brown Quintet Hands Cleveland First Defeat of Season, 33 to 28.

Soldan High School's reputation for shooting the granddoleous full of holes was upheld last night in its basketball game with Cleveland High School, the gold and brown beating its apparently stronger opponent 33 to 28.

Previous to the contest Cleveland, which had won both of its games, was a top-heavy favorite over Soldan.

Cleveland had hoped to go through the season without a defeat. It's a matter of record in interschool circles that Soldan takes particular delight in spoiling just such hopes.

Therefore, while the latter's victory was extremely surprising, in view of the circumstances, it wasn't entirely unexpected.

Second Game an Upset.

The result of the second game also went against the grain of the dope.

Yeatman had been generally selected to trim Central. The reverse of the thing occurred last night, Central winning, 28 to 16.

Yeatman, of course, has a logical alibi and one which probably is sufficient to excuse him. He was a victim of the defeat. Benny Winkelman's last-minute decision to quit the team had been a doubt and if Yeatman feels so inclined, it can very well attribute the loss to Benny's absence.

Soldan's team play was easily the feature of the opening game. The "wild-man" tactics of Soldan's forwards have been a sore point for Cleveland since the team's defeat last night, and in their stead appeared accurate work at the baskets.

Smith also counted seven field goals for Soldan. Cleveland held a two-point advantage at the end of the first half but in the second period, Soldan stepped to victory.

Central in Great Finish.

Yeatman appeared an almost certain winner at the end of the first period, when the score was 12 to 4 with Central on the short end.

However, in the second period, Central counted 20 points while Yeatman was able to gather but 12 and the latter lost the decision.

The work of Wassal, both on offense and defense was the feature of this game. Bob Larmore's brilliant basket form mid-court also is worthy of honorable mention.

The result of the games last night give Cleveland two victories in three starts and keeps them at the top of the heap. Soldan, McKinley and Central are in the middle, while Yeatman is at the bottom with one victory in three games.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Jan. 10.—The only survivor of the Kansas City, Mo., Army bank here last night when told the authorities the robbery recognized. It is understood he Wornall said that the man while their hands were tied. Wornall recovered consciousness for a short time this afternoon and while his story is fragmentary and hazy, officials thought that it might go a long way toward solving the mystery. Wornall's injuries probably will prove fatal, physicians believe.

According to Wornall, an instant knock at the door of the bank building about 8:30 o'clock last night caused them to admit a man who immediately covered them with a revolver. He then forced Wornall to tie the hands of the others, Wornall says, after which he tied Wornall's hands.

Wornall said he thought the robber realized that he was recognized by some of his victims and that he decided to kill them. Wornall says he picked up a hand ax from the floor and began raining blows upon the heads and faces of the helpless men. C. F. Winters, vice president of the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City, was the first man attacked, Wornall says. A blow from the ax struck him in the back of the head. Winters died early today. O. M. Hill and Carl Chellison, clerks were next struck down, after which the man attacked Wornall and John Jewell of Springfield, who were at the opposite end of the room.

Discovered by a Sentry.

Wornall says when he recovered consciousness he found his hands were not securely tied and managed to free himself and make his way from the building. Wornall was discovered by a sentry wandering about the camp. The sentry called upon him to halt and when Wornall did not obey the sentry moved closer. He discovered Wornall was covered with blood and gave the alarm. Wornall was taken to an infirmary and a detail sent to the bank building. The four bodies were found and the military police notified. Wornall was removed to the hospital at Fort Riley.

Winters received four or five severe cuts on the head and forehead. Hill and Jewell were beaten about the head. Ohelson apparently was killed instantly by a blow on the forehead with the blade of the ax.

Dead Man's Father Was at Bank.

Officials in charge of the case were asking themselves how it was possible for the murders to have taken place in a small area where thousands of armed men are living without the crime being discovered.

A report that the number of sentries at the camp had been reduced because of the cold weather was denied today by Lieut. R. C. Kendall, in charge of the case. Officials expressed the opinion that had the men killed their outcries undoubtedly would have been heard, despite the fact that a heavy wind was blowing.

Another feature of the case which attracted particular attention today was that Carl Ohelson's father, Kansas City contractor, who is building the new bank building at the camp, went to the bank about the time the murders were committed. He found the door locked and called to Winters. The murderer must have answered for Winters, for Wornall told Ohelson to return today. Wornall insisted that the matter was important he says a voice replied: "Please go away, I'll come to you in a few minutes." Ohelson said he left.

Large Amount of Cash on Hand.

Just how much money the robbery obtained was not announced by the authorities. Today is pay day at the camp and it is supposed that there was an unusually large amount of cash on hand.

A large amount of business yesterday kept Winters, Hill, Ohelson and Wornall working until late. Jewell was editor of the Camp Funston Trench and Camp, and a friend
